EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Prohibitionists are increasing in numbers and vitality.

Appearances indicate that Queen Victoria's days are numbered.

To make Bismarck the capital of Dakota was a bitter insult to the American pig.

It is said that by local-option elections in Georgia the saloons in fifty counties have been closed.

Modjeska has been attending the Chinese theatres in San Francisco. She thinks they are real cute.

Governor Butler says the refusal of Harvard to LL. D. him will be worth 10,000 additional votes to him in the fall.

Later crop reports from all parts of the country are very encouraging, The harvest now promises to be unusually abundant.

Taxes in the State of New York have been increased to the extent of over two million dollars, as a result of Democratic success last fall.

Maidens who want to get married should seek work in the treasury department at Washington. It has graduated 100 brides the last four months.

It is officially announced that Victoria is better. There is however no late news concerning the equally mysterious subject of Mr. Tilden's health.

Mrs. Frank Leslie is about to lay aside her widowhood and become a bride again. The Marquis de Leuville is said to be the man who has wooed and won her.

The return of Oscar Wilde to England after having his long hair clipped during a visit to Paris, caused one of the poets to write :

"Our Oscar is with us again ; but, O,
He is changed who was once so fair!
Has the iron gone into his soul? O, no ;
It has only gone over his hair."

Ex-Secretary Sherman hit the nail upon the head when he attributed much of the Republican success to the fact that while the Democrats are blown about by every wind of doctrine, and are everything by turns and nothing long, the Republicans have the courage of their opinions and stick to their text.

Friday, June 1, was the anniversary of the beginning of the Star Route trials. The trial was begun the first of June, 1882, and lasted a few days more than three months. The present trial began virtually the first Monday in December last, as the work of organizing the jury for the term was then commenced and it was understood that the Star Route case was to occupy the whole term.

The telegraph operators now threaten to strike. Such a step on their part would be a desperate one but if the fact of their thorough organization is true, it would almost completely suspend the business of the Western Union company. Almost every telegraph operator in North America is a Knight of Labor, and as they say, nine-tenths of the number will stick, so telling what the end will be. The organization of the Knights of Labor does not, however, recognize a strike.

The recent demonstrations of the French in China are creating more attention in European circles than was expected, and may lead to important results, changing the relations of leading powers concerning the Chinese question as it strikes the people of the Eastern Hemisphere. While their differences are different from ours, they nevertheless, are calculated to produce great results. France will not hastily venture upon a war in such a remote quarter without counting the contigencies, her sad and sudden reverse of 1870 proving a lesson, warning against hasty actions.

Salary Grabbers.

This state is now about to reap the fruit of the independent movement last fall. We have had the privilege of voting outside the Republican organization, the right which every free American has. The Republicans defeated themselves, placed the Democrats in power and now we the people of the state must pay the bills. It seems to be the natural law that we shall not have fun without paying for it. It is true the Republican senate tried to save the Democrats from the odium of an extra session and agreed to compromise the question in dispute, viz: the apportionment, and in committee of conference agreed to vote for the same measure that the Democrats a few days before had themselves voted for, but when they saw the Republicans willing to come to terms then they asked, like "Oliver Twist," for more. The result was no compromise and an extra session. The first day of the extra session was spent by this Democratic house, not in consideration of the apportionment but the question of pay. The law allows $10 a day to each member as long as the special session lasts, and, as there is no limitation on the length of the session, the Democratic members were at once presented with the temptation to make a good thing out of it for themselves. Adjournments were proposed to June 19, September 11 and January 1. Those made by the Republican side of the house stipulated that the members should receive no pay in the mean time. but Crawford (Dem.) from Philadelphia promptly protested against this last proposition, declaring that, as the law gave him pay during the entire extra session, no resolution could keep him out of it. This being the case, a twelve days' adjournment was agreed upon, the House compromising with its conscience at $100 a piece while they are at home attending to their own private business. When the Legislature meets on June 19 it will have cost the State for pay of members alone $30,120. This windfall is the Legislature's reward of merit for making no apportionment. Receiving $2510 for each day while the extra session lasts, whether the Legislature has a sitting or not, the members have every motive for prolonging the fight indefinitely. As it stands, they may, if they choose, draw a permanent pension from the Treasury amounting to $70 a week for each member during the next year and a half, which covers the life of the present Legislature.

This is the price we pay for our independence. This is what we pay for the luxury of having a Democratic government. If the people like it of course they can continue it. Crawford of Philadelphia is a representative Democrat. We also have a specimen from Centre. They bear little pretentions to learning or a nice sense of the proprieties, and clamor for the spoils of office with a coarse sort of bluntness which is sometimes taken for boldness and honesty of expression. They carry loyalty to their Democracy and its party leaders to its utmost limit and never inquire whether a measure is in the interest of the state if it is Democratic or fills their pockets. They are salary grabbers first, last and all the time. This Democratic house wanted its pay even if its members were at home attending to their own affairs. Crawford was their mouth-piece. He said "if the governor wanted an extra session he wanted his pay." Some of the others did not care to commit themselves in the same way, but they voted with Crawford all the same. What an elegant scheme it is to have a Democratic state administration.

In his speech the other day Senator Sherman took firm ground in favor of a protective tariff, and said that it would be a leading issue next year. On that issue the Republicans are pretty certain to win.

The Extra Session.

We have no mind to censure the Governor, says the Philadelphia North American, for promptly calling an extra session of the Legislature. It is only just to say that he early directed attention to the necessity of apportioning the State into congressional, legislative and judicial districts. That he may be somewhat too literal in his interpretation of the Constitution is to be suspected, but it is a failing that will not be rigidly dealt with. The governor has found that personal government cannot be administered even from the vantage ground of the Executive Department. His effort to guide his party into higher paths deserves approbation. He finds that not one or even half a dozen men constitute a majority of a political party. He is not responsible for the extra session. It was forced upon him and will damage the party most inevitably. There was not the slightest reason why an extra session should be necessary six weeks ago. The necessity for it was deliberately created by the leaders of the Governor's party. The Legislature has done very little effective work during its prolonged session. It set out by making simple matters complex and plain matters obscure. There was ample time to have perfected every apportionment bill and to have adjourned at the end of one hundred days.

Even the Philadelphia Times is of opinion that it is not creditable to the Legislature that in a session of five months it failed to accomplish the most important work set before it and that it must be kept at Harrisburg in June to do what it should have done in April. But it will be altogether the fault of the members themselves if this special session be prolonged beyond a few days. They could settle the apportionment in forty-eight hours if they were disposed, and every day's delay will be simply a confession either of incapacity or of unwillingness to do right for the right's sake.

If the apportionment is taken up as a party issue, each side seeking to gain advantage over the other, there can be no agreement, since opposing parties control the two houses. But if members can address themseves to this work as honest men, seeking party advantage only in justice and fair dealing, the whole business resolves itself into a matter of arithmetic and geography that could be disposed of in two days.

The Frenchmen, frightened by the persistent agitation in England in favor of a new canal across the Isthmus of Suez, are doing their best to head the project off. M. de Lesseps announces that the present water way will be enlarged and that a new one will be built by the present company. A second canal would certainly go far toward relieving the blocks in freight at the isthmus which now are the cause of so much complaint. A new passage could be used for the "down" trips and the old one for the "up" trips, and in this way the present delay in crossing would be reduced. If M. de Lesseps's plan should be successful, the British scheme of another canal would probably be postponed for a long time ; but it is by no means certain that it would not be carried out some day. Even with two canals the situation would still be strained, for a French company would command the waterways, and yet four-fifths of the traffic would be English. So a collision of authorities at some time would be likely. However long the conclusion may be postponed, therefore, the end of the whole affair sooner or later will probably be that the British will get control of both canals.

George Gould, son of Jay the Great, has an eye to the consistencies if not the refinements of life. When a family coat-of-arms was proposed to his father the other day, the young man suggested that a bull and a bear be made the central figures in it.

A Professional Question.

The question whether allopathic physicians, who consult with members of the homœopathic schools, should be condemned and excluded by the medical societies of their own school, remarks the Pittsburg Dispatch, has provoked a discussion among the New York physicians which is developing into decided bitterness Those who favor innovations are pointing out that it is the doctor's business to heal the sick, and that he should attend the call of all who need him, independent of theoretical scruples. To refuse advice and prescriptions to a sufferer, because he has been in charge of one whom the allopathic physician deems to be irregular and mistaken, these people claim to be an abandonment of the great purpose of the medical profession.

People who make such arguments as these do not comprehend the real restrictions which which govern the regular physician. He is bound by the awful logic of professional courtesy. That powerful code renders it necessary for a doctor when called into consultation with another physician, to endorse everything that physician has done. No matter if the attending physician has been all astray in diagnosis of treatment, the consulting doctor must approve it all. Under this rule of professional courtesy, the allopathic physician who was called to consult with a homeopath would have to approve the latter's views. But, as the first article of the regular code is that the homeopathic physician does nothing that is right, to approve his treatment would be to knock the professional code into the smallest possible fractions.

It is evident that we cannot get along without a code of professional courtesy, and that to allow allopaths to consult with homeopaths would make it necessary to construct an entirely new one. It is not strange that the medical brethren of New York despair of attaining any new production in that line, so fearfully and wonderfully made as the one now in vogue.

Prof. Nordenskjold's departure for Greenland is the beginning of a scientific exploration of peculiar interest. The distinguished savant and explorer will direct his expedition to the interior of Greenland, where his belief in the existence of an open polar sea leads him to expect that he will find a vast and fertile oasis. He intends to look for traces of the Norsemen, who are said by tradition to have colonized that country centuries before Columbus discovered the New World. And finally he hopes that he can bring back with him a cargo of meteoric dust to corroborate his theory that the earth is constantly receiving additions of matter from celestial space. It will be very interesting and important if the famous explorer of the Vega secures any or all of these objects ; but prior experience of the country creates the belief that he will find nothing in Greenland but sterile plains and icy mountains.

Thomas A. Hendricks, the prehistoric statesman of Indiana, suddenly looms up from the friendly obscurity by which for the past seven years or thereabouts he has been concealed from the view of a short-memoried public, and gently intimates that "Bar dis is willin.'" Of course he has no desire to be drawn once more into the political whirlpool, but he is not the man to turn away his ear from the call of a nominating convention. He is in the hands of his friends, and if it is thought necessary for the success of the Democracy next year that he should a second time serve as the tail to Mr. Tilden's kite, he is ready to oblige. But the chances are he will not be troubled.

What will this extra session cost the State treasury? There are two hundred and fifty-one senators and members, and each man is entitled to ten dollars per day. And as it is likely that the special session will last thirty days, any one can figure up the cost.

The Ohio Republicans have nominated a good man in Judge Foraker as their candidate for the Governorship, and they have placed him upon a strong, honestly-constructed platform, such as any loyal Republican might be proud to stand upon. It is a pleasure to read a declaration of principles in which there is so much readiness to come squarely and boldly out and show one's colors, and so little disposition to evade live issues and carry water on both shoulders. The trumpet of the Ohio Republicans gives forth no uncertain sound. Their confession of faith is explicit and emphatic, and the voters of Ohio know exactly what it is they are asked to support. Now let us wait and see if the Democrats will be equally frank and courageous.

The burning of Barnum's circus tent at Chicago on Tuesday, the 5th, fell short of the chance it had to make a magnificent sensation as well as a splendid advertisement. If a lion or a tiger or two, with a few elephants had broken loose and ranged the streets during the conflagration, it would have been a great thing both for the veteran showman and the sensational Chicago reporter. As the fire only destroyed the tent at a loss of $12,000, it was not worth half that sum as an advertisement and may be regarded as a genuine casualty But there seems to be no reason in the limitations of fact, why the enterprising Chicago newspaper men should have neglected their opportunity to turn the wild beasts loose

So many different and conflicting rumors are afloat in regard to the condition of the Queen's health that there is no knowing what to believe It is, however, tolerably clear that she is suffering more or less from some mysterious ailment which the doctors and the court attendants are, for reasons best known to themselves, extremely anxious to conceal. There is an eminent suggestiveness in those fits of depression by which she is admitted to have been afflicted. They recall the sad circumstances under which George the Third, Victoria's grandfather, ended his reign.

The era of harmony and reconciliation in Russia can hardly be said to have fairly set in when the Mayor of Moscow is sent into exile for having suggested in the course of an after-dinner speech that it would be a good thing if the Czar were to establish some limited kind of constitutional government. This is evidently a very distasteful idea to the powers that be, but to that or something worse the autocratic Czar will have to come at last. The spirit of the age is setting as strongly as steadily in that direction, and he can no more resist it than King Canute could turn back the inflowing tide.

Mr. E. Kay Robinson, of London is the author of a learned essay demonstrating that the "Man of the Future" will be a "toothless, hairless, slow-limbed animal, incapable of extended locomotion," whose feet "will have no division between the toes" but will have a "great projecting toe like a thumb from to side," and will be decorated with a "tail longer than its legs." The "Man of the Future" will be "very averse to fighting and will maintain his position in the foremost files of time solely upon the strength of a few peculiar convolutions in his brain."

The Democratic idea of protection is that it is an evil attendant upon the raising of a revenue. They would be glad if a tariff for revenue would not protect, but as it does they are as ready to demand the votes of American laborers as they are the money of the European manufacturer, whose interests they serve, as well as the raising of a necessarily large revenue will permit.

Gilbert and Sullivan are said to be at work on a grand opera.

A beautiful woman of Troy works in an iron foundry. She has been crossed in love, and says the din of the iron shops is the only thing that keeps her from inking and insanity. She has to make herself physically as miserable as possible to keep her brain alert.

Mr. Morgan Sowards, of Big Sandy, Ky., found a human skeleton in his yard after a heavy rain. The fore-arm was six inches longer than that of an average man, the skull was massive, and the jawbone enormous. Around the neck were a number of Indian trinkets.

On the night of May 30, at the Knoxville, Tenn., water works, the bottom of one of the reservoirs dropped out, emptying in five minutes 500,000 gallons of water into a cavern beneath. The water has not come to the surface, though the reservoirs are on a hill several hundred feet high.

When General Schenck read in the newspapers the other day that members of the Black Hand were being sentenced to death in Spain, he asked a friend to write to Hannibal Hamlin and ask him if that was the punishment they deal out in Spain to the men who were fortunate enough to secure a spade flush.

The living poets are worse off than the dead ones at the present time. The works of the dead poets have no copyright restrictions, and can be issued as fast and as cheap as the publishers please, while the modern and living poets are at the disadvantage of charging at least 10 cents on the dollar to every one who favors them with a reading.

There is a man in Missouri known as the "blue man." When about 15 he took five drops of a solution of nitrate of silver, containing twenty grains to the ounce, and continued this for five or six months. At the end of that time he observed that the face and hands were becoming dark. This color has become permanent, and hence the sobriquet.

Whether sleepers can be made to pass from natural to chloroform sleep, if the chloroform is held near the face, is still a question. Sometimes the experiment has succeeded, but in five experiments recently made to determine the fact every one of the sleepers experimented upon woke at the expiration of three minutes before they had come under the influence of the drug.

Sir Boyle Roche's flight of oratory in the Irish House of Commons—"I smell a rat, I see him floating through the air; but I will nip him in the bud"—has been nearly approached by an English legislator declaiming against the game laws. "What," said he, "could be more iniquitous than that tenants should not only be obliged to keep the rabbits for their landlords, but even to preserve their eggs"

"The Battle of the Thirty" occurred the 27th of March, 1351, at Midway Oak, half-way between the castles of Josselin and Ploermel, in France. The French General Beaumanior, commanding the former post, challenged the English General Bemborough to fight. The challenge was promptly accepted, and it was arranged that each commander should be aided by thirty knights. The English were getting the best of the fight, but Bemborough being slain the French returned to the assault with renewed vigor, and the English having lost their leader became dispirited and were defeated.

THE WEDDING OF THE TOWNS.

(THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE.)

BY WILL CARLETON.

Let all of the bells ring clear—
  Let all of the flags be seen!
The King of the Western Hemisphere
  Has married the Island Queen!
For many a day he waited
  By the lordly river's side,
And deemed that the maid was fated
  To be his own true bride;
For many a night he wooed her
  Upon her lofty throne,
For many a year pursued her,
  To win her for his own;
Nor thankless his endeavor,
  Nor coy the regale maid;
But, like true love's course ever,
  The banns were long delayed.

And boys to men had grown,
  And men their graves had sought;
But the gulf was yet between them thrown,
  And the wooing seemed for naught,
And couriers oft were dashing
  'Twixt him and his adored;
But still was the river flashing
  Between them, like a sword.
In heart they well were mated;
  And patiently and long
They for each other waited—
  These lovers true and strong.
Let never a flag be hidden!
  Let never a bell be dumb!
The guests have all been bidden—
  The wedding-day has come!

Through many a golden year
  Shall shine this silvery tie;
Then wondering worlds will gather here,
  And gaze with gleaming eye.
Philosophers will ponder
  How, blessed by the hand of Heaven,
The world has another wonder
  To add to her ancient seven.
Philanthrophists will linger
  To view the giant span,
And point, with grateful finger,
  To man's great work for man;
And all will bless the year
  When, in the May-month green,
The King of the Western Hemisphere
  Was wed to the Island Queen.

THREE ROGUES.

The day was fading fast,
  When 'neath a wayside tree
Three rogues did chance to meet—
  All bad as rogues could be.

For one had stabbed a man,
  And one had robbed and run;
The other burned a house,
  And laughed at what he'd done.

Quoth another: "What shall we do?
  We will be caught, I fear;
Police are watching hard
  For us both far and near."

Then one did run away,
  And one confessed his crime;
But the wisest of the three
  Kept smiling all the time.

And to his captors showed
  A bag of yellow gold,
And by its gleam and weight
  He bought them all so bold.

To one they gave a cell,
  And he was hung who ran;
But he who paid the gold
  Was made a Congressman.

Our Story Teller.

In Borrowed Plumage.

"A literary man, eh?" said Octavia Glenn. "Author of 'Stray Leaves' and 'Floating Fancies!' Then why in the name of all the muses and graces isn't he about his work?"

Little Fernanda drew herself up with some resentment.

"He is having his spring vacation," said she. "He is resting his over-wearied brain a little before the public shall become clamorous for more writings from his pen."

"Oh!" said Octavia.

"Yes," nodded her younger sister. "And, oh, Octavia, you can't think how charming he is! I have always sighed to know an author. And he isn't a bit conceited or set up!"

"Isn't he?"

"Not a particle. He has written his autograph in my album, and given me a copy of 'Floating Fancies.' And Mary Martinez is quite wild about him. And Octy—"

"Well?"

"Please don't say anything about the store," coaxed Fernanda. "I have given him to understand that you are taking a course of lessons in music and thorough bass. It isn't genteel to be a shop-girl, you know, and—"

"Hoity toity?" said Octavia with a toss of her really handsome head. "This is a pretty state of things, and all about a man who writes books. Isn't it just as genteel for me to sell buttons and cologne and lace barbes as it is for him to sell his writings? And haven't I a right to earn my own living in any way I choose? Fernanda, I didn't think you were such a goose!"

"Octy's right—Octy's right, my dear," said old Grandfather Glenn, who had been sitting so drowsily in his arm chair near by that none of the girls supposed that the subject of their discourse was known to him. "A true gentleman ain't afraid of work. A true gentleman honors the woman as earns her own bread. There's a deal of electroplate in this world, and some of it is laid on so skilful you can't distinguish it from real silver. But the silver's silver for all that, and the other's only humbug!"

Having uttered which oracular sentences, old Mr. Glenn once more relapsed into silence.

"Grandpa is so queer!" said Fernanda, with an injured expression of countenance. "But you'll promise me, won't you, dear?"

But Octavia only laughed, and went out into the kitchen, to see if the bread was light enough for the oven.

Mr. Fitz Arragan was certainly rather handsome. He was dressed very elegantly, also; he wore what was either a a diamond, or a very excellent imitation of one, on his finger, and his cravats were simply superb. He looked at Octavia Glenn with some interest, when they were introduced.

"You are fond of music?" he said, in that soft, insinuating way which Fernanda found so irresistible.

"I don't object to it," said Octavia bluntly.

And at that juncture, Fernanda hurried the literary man away, to look at a beautiful cluster of trailing arbutus, which some one had just brought in from the woods.

"There's no telling what Octy would blurt out, if you once gave her the chance," said she.

And she did not breathe freely until Octavia had left the old farmhouse, and gone back to her duties in the big fancy store on Twenty-third Street.

Octavia herself felt as if some disagreeable pressure was removed from her existence. She was a frank, noble-natured girl, who was saving up her earnings to pay off the mortgage on old Grandfather Glenn's farm.

She occupied a fireless hall bedroom in a shabby, little, down-town boarding-house, patronized mostly by the guild of working people, whose only recommendation was its scrupulous neatness.

She wore cotton gloves, dyed-over gowns, and the plainest of plain bonnets, and through it all she respected herself.

Stay, though—we have not told it all! There was one extravagance in which Octavia Glenn occasionally indulged herself—that of charity. She had a class of innocent faced children in the Mission School, of an evening, and she was a diligent worker in the ranks of a quiet benevolent society, which wrought a great deal of good without any blowing of trumpets.

And one day, when the feeble old porter at the store fell ill, and his place was vacant, Octavia Glenn constituted herself a committee of one to inquire into the matter.

"Of couse you can do as you like, Miss Glenn," said Mr. Idem, the proprietor of the store. "But Ferrigan lives in a most dismal neighborhood, and I'm not sure that it is altogether safe for you to venture out after dark."

"After dark is all the time I have," said Octavia, bruskly. "And it must be a great deal worse to live there than to go once in a while. I think I'll risk it."

So she begged permission from the boarding-house keeper to make a little farina jelly over the cooking-stove when the heavy, blackberry dumplings, which were to regale the boarders for desert, were taken up, bought a few strawberries and a small slice of sponge-cake, and set forth to visit old Ferrigan, the porter.

It was a dismal neighborhood, indeed, where the poor old man lived, a neighborhood where piles of ashes in the narrow streets made a sort of model of the Rocky Mountains, on a small scale, and layers of cabbage-leaves and damaged lettuce festered in the gutter; where rivulets of soapsuds trickeled across the pavement; and there appeared to be more feeble grogeries than there were people. The very gaslights sulked behind their cloudy lanters, and the occasional passers prowled by like homeless cats.

The whole house seemed to be damp. Blotches of blue mould had broken out here and there on the ceiling, the walls felt damp and clammy to the touch, as if Octava had put her hand, by mistake, on a snail; vegetable-scented whiffs came up, now and then, from the cellar, and the room in which old Ferrigan lay, gasping with rheumatic pains, felt more like a dungeon than anything else

No carpet was there, no table, only a shelf, where a dispirited kerosene-lamp had smoked its chimney into a black cylinder; no chairs, the window uncurtained; and the shabby bed-spread was tattered and soiled until its pattern was beyond recognition.

Octavia's soul recoiled from this impersonation of hopeless poverty.

"Can I do anything for you, Mr. Ferrigan?" she asked, after she had tenderly administered the farina-jelly, the fruit and the sponge-cake, straightened up the bed-clothes and trimmed the lamp afresh.

"It's very good of you, I am sure," said the old man, with the plaintive courtesy of his nation. "And I'll not deny it was a word of comfort and kindness that I was wearying for. But it won't be needful long, I'm hoping. I've sent word to my son—he's a book-binder, miss, and doing well at his trade, but it is natural-like, don't you see? as he wouldn't like to be dragged down by such a useless old clog as me!"

"But he is your son, isn't he?" cried Octavia; "and you're his father?"

"Faith, and that's true, Miss, dear," said old Ferrigan, with a sigh. "But he's a fine, ambitious young man—a rale gintleman to look at, and of a Sunday you couldn't tell him from the gentry themselves. And he may marry a grand lady yet—who knows?—an' he wouldn't like me to be spoilin' his chances. So I just keep dark, Miss Glenn; and sometimes I think—Lord forgive me!—that I'd be better dead an' out of the way. But I sent word to him, day before yesterday. An' he'll come—I think he'll come!" the old man added, with a scarcely audible sigh.

At that moment, a careless step came up the stairs—the door was pushed open and a tall figure strode in.

"Sick again!" said a petulant tone. "It appears to me, old gentleman, that it's your chief mission in life to make trouble for other people. Well, what is it now? If it is money you want, you may as well understand, first as at last, that I can't let you have any. "You'll have to swallow that absurd prejudice of yours against charitable institutions, or—"

He stopped short, impelled by the hurried gesture of the old man's hand.

"Somebody's here?" said he, peering through the semi-darkness. "Well, why couldn't you say so? Who is it? The old hag down stairs or—"

"It is I, Mr. Fitz Arragon," said Octavia, quietly advancing—Octavia Glenn."

"Oh, I beg a thousand pardons!" said Mr. Ferrigan Fitz Arragon, hurriedly assuming his "company" manners. "If I could have imagined that such an honor as this was in store for me—"

"I don't know what you mean by such honors," said Octavia, bluntly. "I am a working-girl; you are a book-binder. We have neither of us any reason to be ashamed of our calling; yet I see no necessity for fine language and stilted titles. Your poor old father is very ill, and seems to be in need of the commonest necessities of life. Suppose you sell your diamond ring and help him?"

That was the end of Mr. Fitz Arragon's pretensions. He never came back to the country solitudes again, to Fernanda Glenn's bitter disappointment.

But how could he face them all, after it was discovered that his "authorship" of "Stray Leaves" and "Floating Fancies" was confined only to putting the covers on the same, and that the real author was a stout, short, old gentleman in spectacles, and that even his name was a fabrication of his own ingenious brain?

Old Mr. Ferrigan died. Perhaps, as he himself had hinted, it was the best and wisest thing that he could do.

But Octavia Glenn's kindness and watchful care soothed his last hours, and she had the satisfaction of getting the price of a decent funeral out of the ambitious son.

"A jay in borrowed plumage!" she thought. "I never despised any one so much in my life!"

And when Fernanda bewailed her delusion, old Grandfather Glenn only smiled, and said:

"Didn't I tell you that he was only electroplated?"—Helen Forrest Graves.

Carlyle and Emerson as Letter Writers.

The fine touch in Emerson's letters, as in his other writings, is always the spiritual touch. For the rest, felicitous as they are for the most part they suffer a little by comparison with Carlyle's; they are less natural, more composed, have too studied a quaintness. It was his practice, apparently, to make two drafts of these communications. The violent color, the large avalanche-movement of Carlyle's style—as if a mass of earth and rock and vegetation had detached itself and came bouncing and bumping forward—make the efforts of his correspondent appear a little pale and stiff. There is always something high and pure in Emerson's speech, however, and it has often a perfect propriety seeming, in answer to Carlyle's extravagances, the note of reason and justice. "Faith and love are apt to be spasmodic in the best minds. Men live on the brink of mysteries and harmonies into which they never enter, and with their hand on the door latch they die outside."

Oscar Wilde on the Unutterable Wheel.

"A wheel is in itself," said Oscar Wilde, "a very beautiful object. All the noblest forms of the ceramic art are derived from the potter's wheel. And yet in England I have always thought machinery an ugly thing: a jumble of cranks and cogs and petty pieces, you know, without a touch of grandeur about them. So I entered that castellated horror at Chicago, and there at last came upon a wheel—the wheel of the Chicago Water Works—a mighty, majestic, unutterably harmonious wheel. I saw the beauty and the poetry of America in that revolving wonder; and I said to myself, if ever America produces a great musician, let him write a Machinery Symphony. He could have no more worthy subject.

"But of course they never will have a great musician out here," continued Oscar, dropping from the clouds to earth with singular suddenness, "until they have abolished the shrieking steam whistle. Their tympanums have all been ruined by these whistles."

Mr. Jay Gould Joking.

New York Times.

A paragraph was printed yesterday saying that Jay Gould had given an order to a Philadelphia firm to decorate the interior of his house at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street while he was away on his trip around the world, at an expense of $300,000.

"That's a mistake," said Mr. Gould, very soberly, when asked about it. "The amount ought to be stated at $3,000,000."

"Then there is no truth in the statement, Mr. Gould?"

"None whatever," replied Mr. Gould, seriously. "I have ordered no work of the kind either at my residence in New York or my place at Irvington."

"Have you made any additional arrangements about your trip around the world on your yacht?"

"Yes; after mature deliberation I have concluded to take the Brooklyn bridge with me."

The new proprietor of the New York World settled a strike in his office by granting the printers' demands and then taking them all out to a lager beer saloon. It is thought now that a strike will occur in that office at least seven times a week—unless the beer seller around the corner trusts.

The Bad Boy.

HIS PA HAS STRANGE, INNOCENT AND FUNNY EXPERIENCES WITH SOME Y. M. C. A. DELEGATES.

Peck's Sun.

"Well, how's your eye?" said the groceryman to the bad boy, as he blew in with the wind the day of the cyclone, and left the door open.

"Everything is quiet so far. I guess since I have got a record as a fighter, the boys will be careful who they insult when I am around. But I have the hardest week I ever experienced, jerking soda for the Young Men's Christian Association," said the boy as he peeled a banana.

"What do you mean, boy? Don't cast any reflections on such a noble association. They don't drink, do they?"

"Drink! O, no! They don't drink anything intoxicating, but when it comes to soda they flood themselves. You know there has been a National Convention of delegates from all the Young Men's Christian Associations of the whole country, about one thousand here, and our store is right on the street where they passed four times a day, and I never saw such appetites for soda. There has been one continued fizz in our store since Wednesday. The boss wanted me to play it on some of them by putting some brandy in with the perfumery a few times, but I wouldn't do it. I guess a few weeks ago, before I had led a different life, I wouldn't had to be asked twice to play the game on anybody. But a man can buy soda of me and be perfectly safe. Of course, if a man winks, when I ask him what flavor he wants, and says 'never mind,' I know enough to put in brandy. That is different. But I wouldn't smuggle it into a man for nothing. This Christian Association convention has caused a coolness between pa and ma, though."

"How's that? Your pa isn't jealous, is he?" and the grocery man came around from behind the counter to get the latest gossip to retail to the hired girls who traded with him.

"Jealous nothin'" said the boy, as he took a few raisins out of a box. "You see, the delegates were shuffled out to all the church members to take care of, and they dealt two to ma, and she never told pa anything about it. They came to supper the first night, and pa didn't get home, so when they went to the convention in the evening ma gave them a night key, and when pa came home from the boxing match about eleven o'clock, ma was asleep. Just as pa got most of his clothes off he heard somebody fumbling at the front door, and he thought it was burglars. Pa has got nerve enough when he is on the inside of the house and the burglars on the outside. He opened a window and looked out and saw two suspicious looking characters trying to pick the lock with a skeleton key, and he picked up a new slop-jar that ma had bought when we moved, cover and all, and dropped it down right between the two delegates. Gosh, if it had hit one of them there would have been the solemnest funeral you ever saw. Just as it struck they got the door opened and came in the hall, and the wind was blowing pretty hard and they thought a cyclone had taken the cupola off the house. They were talking about being miraculously saved, and trying to strike a match on their wet pants, when pa went to the head of the stairs and pushed over a wire stand filled with potted plants, which struck pretty near the delegates, and one of them said the house was coming down sure, and they better go into the cellar, and they went down and got behind the furnace. Pa called me up and wanted me to go down cellar and tell the burglars we were onto them, and for them to get out, but I wasn't very well, so pa locked his door and went to bed. I guess it must have been half an hour before pa's cold feet woke ma up.

Pa stood on the bottom stair and looked around, and one of the delegates said, 'Mister, is the storm over and is your family safe,' and ma recognized the voice and said, 'Why it's one of the delegates. What are they doing down there,' and pa said, 'What's a delegate,' and then ma explained it and pa apologized and the delegate said it was no matter, as they had enjoyed themselves real well in the cellar. Ma was mortified most to death, but the delegates told her it was all right. She could not help telling pa he was a bald-headed old fool but pa didn't retaliate. He is too much of a gentleman to talk back in company. All he said was that a woman who is old enough to have delegates sawed off on to her ought to have sense enough to tell her husband, and then they all drifted off into conversation about the convention and the boxing match, and everything was all right on the surface, but after breakfast, when the delegates went to the convention, I noticed pa went right down town and bought a new slop jar, and some other plants. Pa and ma didn't speak all the afternoon, and I guess they wouldn't up to this time, only ma's bonnet came home from the milliner's, and she had to have some money to pay for it. Then she called pa 'pet' and that settled it. When ma calls pa pet that is $25. 'Dear old darling' means $50."

"Oh, give us a rest," said the groceryman, as he took a basin of water to sprinkle the floor, preparatory to sweeping out. "You have got the worst case I ever saw, and you better go out and walk around," and the boy went out and forgot to hang out any sign.

Kate Chase and Gov. Sprague.

From the Cleveland Leader

"Did you know that it was in this town that Kate Chase and Governor Sprague first met?" asked Colonel Dick Parsons, toying idly with an after dinner cigar, as we sat to-day in the cosy library of his home on Prospect street. "Yes, sir. I introduced them myself and they fell in love with each other right off. It was at the time of the unveiling of the Perry monument down in the park, early in the war. Governor Chase and his family always stopped at my house when in Cleveland, and Kate was visiting us then. Over there," pointing to a leather-covered easy chair in the corner, "is where Governor Chase used to sit, in the same chair and on the same spot, and the room he used to occupy. We have always called it the governor's room. It was in that chair that he decided to accept the chief justiceship. He came here one night and we talked it all over, the reasons for and against his acceptance. I thought he ough' to take it. We sat up late, but before he went to bed his decision was reached and the next day in this room wrote out his acceptance. Garfield came here the second day after his nomination. He sat in the governor's chair for an hour or two talking about the nomination and feeling pretty blue that day. Then he opened his mail and answered a lot of despatches from that table.

"About Kate Chase? Oh, yes. Well the Perry ceremonies lasted over several days, ending with a ball at the Kennard house. My wife and Kate and I drove down in my carriage. We had hardly entered the hall when we met Sprague. I presented him to the ladies. He and Kate went off together, and for the rest of the evening, wherever we saw one of them we were pretty sure to see the other. It was a case of mutual infatuation—and no wonder. Rhode Island had sent a deputation to share in the celebration, because Parsons—of my family, by the way, who was Perry's right-hand man in the fight on the lake—was a Rhode Islander. Sprague was attended by his full staff and a governor's guard of about one hundred, with a fine band of music. They made a gorgeous display and stunning impression. He was the only man in black clothes in the whole party, and being young and very handsome and splendidly surrounded, he seemed exactly suited to Kate's brilliancy and beauty, for she was not only the most brilliant girl, but the most brilliant woman I ever met. Her vivacious manner and graceful figure, clear complexion, chestnut hair and expressive eyes commanded everyone's admiration. So was it a wonder they took to each other? I remember very well how, when it was getting late that night and we wanted to go home, Kate came over to us with Sprague and persuaded us to stay longer. I believe the celebration ended with the ball. I can't remember whether Sprague called here before he left for home but in any event he went to Washington the next winter. Kate was living there. They met again, and within a year of their introduction were married. I believe that meanwhile Sprague became interested in a widow who afterward married here and lived in the big house on Euclid avenue, now owned by the Union club. But when Kate and Sprague met again the old flame was fanned, he forgot the widow, and a wedding soon followed. They came here on their bridal trip and, of course, had the governor's room.

Nothing Easier.

A thief was caught in a London establishment a short time ago opening a safe containing a fortune, with a key as perfect as though made originally for the lock. The man was convicted, and his prosecutors, out of curiosity, begged him to tell them how he got the key. "Nothing easier," he replied. "We knew who carried the key and what it was like. So me and my pals we gets into the same carriage with your manager when he's going home by rail. One of us has a bag which he can't open. Has any gentleman got a key? Your manager produces his bunch, and my pal, he has wax in his palm, and takes a likeness of the key of the safe while seeming to open the bag. There's the secret for you."

Another Happy Family.

James Dugger, living north of town, is the owner of a cat, which has three kittens. Some few days ago he captured a flying squirrel, took it home, supposing that the cat would eat it, but, to his surprise, the cat took the squirrel and allowed it the same privileges that she did her kittens—that of nursing. A few days later Dugger went out in the woods and shot a coon and took the young coons. These he placed in care of the old cat, who at once admitted them to her family, and to-day this remarkable old feline is nestling three kittens, three coons and a flying squirrel.—Breakfast Table.

Reyburn Complimented.

HARRISBURG, June 5.—President pro tem. Reyburn of the Senate was this evening presented by the Senators with a beautiful tea set of massive silver lined with gold and a miniature gavel with diamonds in the head, the whole valued at $600. To these Chief Clerk Cochran added in ivory gavel of the regulation size hooped with gold.

Senator Hall, of Elk, made the presentation speech, in which he contrived with admirable discrimination to compliment Senator Reyburn and yet say nothing to which every Senator could not subscribe. "I cannot say your rulings have always been faultless," he said with a smile: "You are but human. I will not say your judgment has always been unbiased, for you are a partisan as I am and as we all are. You are a man of decided convictions and you maintain them with a courage which shows you are made of the stuff to stand as a conservative barrier against the mad passions of the hour; but beyond this undaunted courage, which we admire, is the tenderness of heart, great as a woman's which we love." Senator Reyburn was evidently touched at the candor of the speaker and responded with much feeling and eloquence. Lieutenant Governor Black was also presented with a gold-mounted ivory gavel by Senator Herr in behalf of Chief Clerk Cochran.

GENERAL W. G. MITCHELL, who died in New York Wednesday, and who was so well known by many of our citizens, was one of those able aides whose efficient work is known to the public only by the success of the chief with whom he serves. A young Pennsylvanian, he enlisted at the breaking out of the war, and, gaining a place on Hancock's staff, served with him in each step of the way which began with a brigade and ended in the command of the Second Corps. High personal bravery and cool judgment were conspicuous in General Mitchell, and in the terrible assault at Cold Harbor and the attack at Spottsylvania he displayed both qualities, winning promotion step by step until his brevets rose to brigadier general. He entered the regular army at the close of the war and died assistant adjutant general.

His Soul and His Silver.

"Your asking me how I came to use it, reminds me of the story of the Scotchman who, on his death-bed, after a life of meanness, wanted to make things all right with the Lord by leaving some money to the kirk."

"'Will the Almighty pass me into Heaven if I give 10,000 pounds to the kirk, d'ye think?' said he."

"'I can't promise ye thot, mon,' answered the minister, 'but I advise ye to try the experiment.'"

Laughing heartily at the story, Rev. F. E. Osborne, of No. 273 Ogden avenue, Jersey City, pastor of the First Baptist Church, West Hoboken, continued: "That's what I did with PARKER'S TONIC; I tried the experiment. It more than met my expectations, and I am very glad to testify to its excellence. It goes at once to the root of all digestive and nervous derangements so common among men of my profession. For women and chronic invalids the Tonic is a perfect invigorant, and is destined to supplant all other remedies for this purpose. A single dose produces the gentle perspiration and sense of life which eradicates disease. It seems to rouse every organ into activity. I admire it, too, for its power to antagonize the hold of the liquor habit over inebriates."

This preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be called simply PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers with inferior articles under the name of ginger; and as ginger is really an unimportant flavoring ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There will be no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the facsimile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper. 19-41

The Wonderful Efficacy of
DR. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS

Has been so frequently and satisfactorily proven that it seems almost superfluous to say anything more in their favor. The immense and constantly increasing demand for them, both in this and foreign countries, is the best evidence of their value. Their sale to-day in the United States is far greater than any other cathartic medicine. This demand is not spasmodic, it is regular and steady. It is not of to-day or yesterday, it is an increase that has been steadily growing for the last thirty-five years. What are the reasons for this great and growing demand?

Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills contain no mercury, and yet they act with wonderful effect upon the liver. They cleanse the stomach and bowels of all irritating matter, which, if allowed to remain, poisons the blood, and brings on Malaria, Chills and Fever, and many other diseases. They give health and strength to the digestive organs. They create appetite and give vigor to the whole system. They are in fact the medicine of all others which should be taken in times like the present, when malarial and other epidemics are raging, as they prepare the system to resist attacks of disease of every character.

Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills are sold by all druggists at 25c. per box, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price.

Dr. Schenck's Book on Consumption, Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, in English or German, is sent free to all. Address Dr. J. H. SCHENCK & SON, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Barber Boys Hanged.

WAVERLY, Ia., June 10.—The Barber brothers were taken from jail Friday night by a mob and hanged to a tree half a mile east of the jail. The lynching was witnessed by fully 1,000 persons besides the lynching party. The Barber boys were hanged at 11.30 o'clock, and ten minutes after were pronounced dead. The lynchers, led by a brother of Deputy Sheriff Sheppard, whose brother was killed by the Barber brothers at West Union last fall, approached the jail and summarily demanded the keys. The sheriff refused to deliver them, and a moment later the jail was attacked.

Sledge hammers, crowbars and battering rams of wood, with which the mob had apparently provided themselves, were brought to bear on the heavy doors. Meanwhile the party yelled like fiends, uttering such cries as must have made the victims of their vengeance cower in their cells were they other than the most desperate characters. The bolts and bars at the entrance to the jail withstood only a few moments the determined onslaught, and as the bolts gave way the enraged mob rushed in to seize their victims. The sheriff, the moment the attack was made, saw that resistance was useless.

Suicide of a Wealthy Citizen.

ERIE, June 7.—This morning Allen Parker, a wealthy citizen of East Mill Creek and a prominent county politician, was found hanging by the neck in his barn. The discovery was made by his two sons and while the body was yet warm. Temporary insanity is presumed to have been the cause.

Verdict against a Railroad Company.

PORTLAND, Maine, June 8.—In the suit of the State against the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth Railroad Company for State taxes, a judgment for $14,000 has been rendered against the company.

From the Indian Country.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Adjutant General Drum this morning received the following telegram:

WHIPPLE BARRACKS, Arizona, June 6.—To General R. C. Drum, Washington, D. C.: Lieutenant Davis, Third cavalry, after an examination of the Indians recently surrendered at Don Carlos, reports that the Chiricahuas who surrendered belonged to Loco's family and number two boys and eighteen women and children. Sixty days ago the Mexican troops surprised the hostiles in the southern Sierra Madres. This party of Indians was cut off from the main body, and three days after the fight started for the reservation. One party went back to bring in Loco, but Loco was too old to travel, and told them to come without him. All the Indians were together when surprised by the Mexican troops. Charley McComas was with them, and was well treated. He was kept to aid them in case of surrender.

The Indians knew nothing of General Crook when they left, but knew the country was full of troops, and, if attacked, they will fight until whipped and then scatter through the Sierra Madres. The most of them will try to work back to the reservation. Some expect no mercy. They will keep up the fight and remain in the mountains as long as possible. They have no other place to go. The mountains in many places are inaccessible. General Crook will probably not meet any of them before reaching the extreme southern part of the Sierra Madres. Don't know the exact number of fighting men, but it is between one hundred and one hundred and fifty. There are more than three hundred women and children. The number of men includes boys large enough to bear arms.

The Indians think General Crook will have trouble to find the hostiles. The latter will run if they can. The Chiricahuas and Warm Springs, with a few renegades, are the only Indians on the war path in Mexico. "Dutchy" Chiricahua, who surrendered at Fort Thomas, puts the number of fighting men, including boys able to bear arms, at 107, including those just surrendered.

The Indians are commanded by Geronimo.

Assistant Adjutant General.

The Star Route Cases.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Mr. Merrick having concluded his nine days' argument to the jury in the star route case and the court having adjourned until Monday, arguments by the prosecution and defense will be heard to-morrow upon the prayers for instructions to the jury. In his argument Merrick has probably outlined the prayers of the prosecution, and if they are approved by the court it is likely that the final charge to the jury will be strongly against the defendants. Undoubtedly the prayers in behalf of the defense will be skillfully framed and will strike at the vitality of the indictment. Not much hope is entertained on that side of a favorable reception of their prayers, many of which are formulated for the purpose of securing exceptions for use in case of an appeal should the court reject them.

Cincinnati Workingmen.

CINCINNATI, O., June 8.—When the scale for the iron workers was signed at Pittsburg it was assumed that work would be resumed here immediately, but it was found there was a strong disposition among the workmen here to break the agreement to abide by the Pittsburg scale. To effect this a scale was presented lower than the Pittsburg scale but it was rejected. One of the mills tried to run yesterday without puddlers but had to close. To-day a meeting of the Amalgamated association of iron and steel workers of Cincinnati, Covington and Newport was held in Covington and agreed to present labor scales on the Pittsburg basis. This, of course, must be accepted by the mills, and all will be running by Monday next.

The settlement of the bootmakers trouble on Tuesday was with one shop only. The men of the remaining five shops are still locked out.

High License.

CHICAGO, June 8.—The fact that the high license bill is almost certain to become a law in this state is the general topic of conversation tonight. There are about four thousand saloons in this city paying $52 each per year, or about $200,000 in all. It is estimated that the number will be reduced to three thousand under the new law, yielding a revenue to the city of $1,500,000. The Citizens' Temperance league rejoices in the prospect and will hold a mass meeting. The Woman's Christian Temperance union views the bill with dislike and suspicions it a scheme of the rum sellers to prolong the life of their traffic. The leading liquor dealers will not contest the constitutionality of the law if it is passed by the senate, admitting that it cannot be successfully attacked.

A Horse nearly Killed by Bees.

READING, June 7.—While David Fink, living near Annville, was driving to market to-day, a swarm of bees, the size of a half-bushel, settled on his horse's head. The animal began to kick and howl in a fearful manner. Mr. Fink, with his naked hands, drew from its nostrils handsful of bees, but the more he strove to remove them the closer they stuck. Fink took off his coat and succeeded in pulling off the swarm and getting the horse out of danger. Mr. Fink was blinded by the stings received and the animal's head was so badly swollen that it could not get its nose in a water bucket.

Mrs. Mason's Money.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The suit to recover $3,000 counsel fees brought by J. S. Bigelow, an attorney of this city, against Bettie E. Mason, wife of Sergeant Mason, who is now serving out sentence of imprisonment for attempting to shoot Guiteau, came up in equity court to-day on a motion to dissolve the order restraining Mrs. Mason from using the money collected for her some time ago by public subscription. Among the papers submitted by Mrs. Mason's counsel was a letter from the counsel of Bigelow offering in behalf of his client to relinquish all claims for $500. The case was submitted without argument.

Lord Coleridge's Visit to America.

LONDON, June 7.—The Times, discussing the coming visit of Lord Chief Justice Coleridge to the United States, says it is specially pleasant to observe that time has not snapped the bonds knitting English and American law.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

State College vs. Bellefonte.

On Saturday afternoon the base ball nine from State College put in appearance in Bellefonte for the purpose of participating in a game with the best nine that Bellefonte could produce. We do not suppose that the Bellefonte nine that was at last called together to play really represents the best base ballists in the borough, but nevertheless there was some good material in it. It was composed as follows: Lingle, Garret, Dewitt, Smith, Conner, Dolan, McKnight, Longwell, and Browse.

The State College nine at once produced an impression. They are nearly all the same size and weight. Though young in years, they are stalwart and handsome, and looked very formidable opponents arrayed in their tasteful white uniforms with blue shoes. They were Hollis, Forster, Lowry, Corcoran, Chesney, Gray, Mankey, Holter and Roberts. They went first to the bat and scored three runs by Hollis, Forster and Chesney, respectively, not allowing their opponents one run in return. The second inning was again in favor of the College nine, Hollis, Forster, Lowry, Corcoron, Chesney, Mankey, Holter and Roberts each scoring runs and again putting the Bellefonters out before they could accomplish anything. The third inning scored five runs for College nine made by Forster, Lowry, Corcoran, Chesney and Gray, respectively. The Bellefonters went in to accomplish something in this inning. Lingle and Garrett each scoring runs. The game now consisted of a race with a thunder storm and consequently neither nine played with care, the College club playing rapidly for the purpose of completing the fifth inning before the storm drove them from the field. In the fourth inning neither nine scored and in the fifth which was played in a brisk rain Chesney and Corcoran of the College nine each made runs. The game was witnessed by about one hundred men and boys. The decisions in two instances seemed to be in favor of the College and against the Bellefonters, although it seemed to us because of the manifest inferiority of the latter they should have been favored. Lingle and Browse, of the Bellefonte nine, showed themselves very excellent men in the field and if the entire nine were equal to them they would make it hot for the College boys.

The State College nine have every reason to be proud of their organization. They are equally excellent at the bat and in the field. The pitching of Corcoran was quite remarkable and contributed greatly to the discomfiture of the Bellefonte nine.

The rain came down in torrents immediately after the game was ended and everybody was drenched.

The score by innings was as follows:

College	3	8	5	0		2—18
Bellefonte	0	0	2	0		0—2

Bellefonte had no idea of winning and was not disappointed.

—Several fights have recently occurred in Snow in which the participants have been severely injured. One of an unusually aggravating nature occurred on Friday of last week in one of the numerous licensed places, the victim receiving several terrible injuries about the head and face. The wonder is that he survived his injuries. It is intimated in the same connection that there is a superfluous number of licensed places in Snow Shoe and vicinity, and as long as they continue to exist the state of lawlessness will remain the same.

—D. M. Burlieu, of Eagleville, is one of the finest and most experienced shoemakers in this part of the country. In this opinion all his neighbors agree. The shoes and boots made by him seem to be more comfortable and last longer than those made by any other person. He is successful in all varieties and descriptions of work. We are glad to know that he is meeting with success

FIGHTING THE FLAMES.

A Disastrous Fire at Snow Shoe on Sunday Morning—Forty Thousand Dollars Worth of Property goes up in Smoke.

On Sunday morning about half-past three o'clock flames were observed issuing from the large frame building in Snow Shoe occupied by William Grauer & Co., general merchants. They were first observed by a woman who is ill who gave the alarm. George DeGarmo was the first person at the scene of the fire and found that the flames had started between the provision building and the main store room, which are communicating structures. When Mr. Grauer, the proprietor, arrived on the scene at least ten other persons were there, but because of the limited facilities for extinguishing fire their efforts were fruitless. Three men were sleeping in the burning building and would have been burned had not Mr. Grauer awakened them. As it was, one of them had to make his exit without any clothing. All of the contents of the store were consumed except about $4,000 worth. The loss in stock is estimated at $35,000, on which there was an insurance of $20,900 with the agency represented by Geo. L. Potter and $5000 in companies represented by Mr. Bond Valentine—$25,900 in all. Mr. Grauer is confident that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

Thence the flames communicated to a stable used, we believe, by Grauer & Co., which was entirely destroyed. There was an insurance of $2500 on the store building and stable combined in campanies represented by Joseph A. Rankin & Son. The two buildings were owned by Mr. H. S. Frank, of Philadelphia. The next building destroyed was a stable used by Collins Bros., railroad contractors. There were thirteen horses and a large quantity of tools in the building, all of which were saved.

The next building destroyed was a large frame dwelling house occupied by Mrs. Foller, formerly Mrs. Sommerville. All of the contents were saved. The house was owned by James L. Sommerville of this place. The loss on this was about $2,000 on which there was an insurance of $1100 with Mr. George Potter's agency.

NOTICE.—The first monthly meeting of the Centre Building and Loan Association will be held in the office of Geo. L. Potter, Friday, June 15th, at 7:30 o'clock p. m., at which time dues will be received and money loaned.

G. L. POTTER, Secy.

MONSTER COMBINATION!

Two Colossal Amusement Temples Massed in one Great City of Tents—Night Made Bright as Day by Brush's Dynamo-Electric Light Illuminating Power Equal to 30,000 Gas Lights.

The Juvenile will now be in wild excitement; also, his sisters, and his cousins and his aunts, in perfect logical sequence his uncles and other male relatives to know that the O'Brien six shows, Royal English Circus and Menagerie and Astley's Museum, comprising a colossal Double Circus, two Leviathan Menageries, Famous Museum, Aquarium and calisthenic Exhibition, etc. The entire show, in all its undivided vastness, for the usual price of admission, is to exhibit at Bellefonte, on Thursday, June 14, (to-morrow).

The grand consolidation of the two monster shows, comes to us well recommended by the press, wherever it has pitched its 168,000 square yards of canvass. Of it the Snow Hill (Md.) Messenger of April 29th, 1883, says: John O'Brien's circus showed in Snow Hill on Monday last to an immense audience, and gave a first-class performance. Indeed, the ring performance is far better than any we have ever had here. During their stay the proprietor exerted himself to see that the best of order prevailed and that all who visited the performances were made comfortable and protected from imposition. Mr. O'Brien is one of the best managers in the business, and to his intelligent and thoughtful supervision was due much of the pleasure afforded on the occasion. Our citizens were well satisfied with the performances.

In the Pottstown Ledger of May 23 we find the following: John O'Brien's circus and menagerie arrived in Pottstown this morning from Kutztown, where they showed yesterday. A large crowd of people collected at the railroad to see the unloading of the horses, animal dens and other paraphernalia belonging to the immense traveling concern. The parade passed through the principal streets this morning, being composed of several band wagons, ladies and gentlemen on horses, camels, elephants, ponies, numerous mardi gras figures, and a very long line of fierce animals in their dens. A noticeable feature was the excellent condition of the horses. Mr. James Ward gave a very clever free exhibition on the slack rope after the parade reached the circus grounds, and was vociferously applauded.

In and About Howard.

Building operations are going on at a brisk rate in this thriving borough. New houses are going up in all parts of the town and good carpenters are in demand. Mr. Robert Cook recently moved into his new dwelling near the depot. It is a handsome residence and a credit to the town.

Mr. Christ. Schenck has about, if not quite, completed a new dwelling in a pleasant location, and is to be pardoned if he feels a little important in consequence.

Mr. Shutt, of the firm of Shutt & Poulsen, is investing some of his spare capital in a new domicile, and Mr. Elsworth Heverly, one of Howard's enterprising young men, will occupy a new house in a few months.

Mrs. Rothrock, mother of Dr. Thos. Rothrock, is putting up a neat frame house in the central part of town which will probably be ready for occupancy early in the fall.

Mr. John A. Woodward, one of the representative farmers of the valley, is making a number of improvements on his valuable farm near town, among others the erection of a handsome cottage to be occupied by his tenant, Mr. John Confer. It is a cozy little dwelling, surrounded by broad, green fields, the front windows looking out upon the winding Bald Eagle, and we wouldn't object to rusticating there a few months ourselves. Mr. Woodward's grain and grass fields look very promising, which may also be said of this entire locality.

We spent a few pleasant moments in the mercantile establishment of B. Webber & Co., and found the senior proprietor and his assistants a set of jolly, courteous gentlemen. They were mighty glad to see us, too, because they said so, and backed up their words by setting out a box of prime cigars. This is one of the largest stores in the borough, conveniently arranged and well stocked.

At a recent meeting of the school board resolutions were passed in favor of building a new and more commodious school building for the borough, which action is to be greatly commended. Howard has been in need of better school facilities for many years but those in charge of the borough affairs have fought the subject down every time it has been brought up, claiming that the people would not submit to an increase in taxation. This is a poor excuse, however, for the people of a community to advance for not keeping up its schools. Money expended for educational purposes, if properly handled, is never lost. It is one of the wisest investments a town or village can make, and pays the very best interest, viz: intelligence. The proposed new building will cost, we were informed, about $4,000, and will be an ornament to the borough.

The Howard Cornet Band, we are pleased to know, is prospering, and will soon rank among the best in the county. It now numbers sixteen members, and considering the length of time it has been organized already plays very creditably. We were sorry that circumstances would not permit us to accept the serenade we were courteously offered, but the next time we tarry in Howard we will endeavor to be there at eventide and then we shall expect the "boys" to do the "beautiful."

An effort is being made by some of the enterprising ones to work up a public sentiment in favor of a Fourth of July celebration, with encouraging results. When Lock Haven hears of this she will probably give up in disgust, or go crazy.

Ex-Postmaster Mahaffy is lying dangerously ill, and it is feared that he cannot recover. We hope, however, that he may be able to shake off the enemy that seeks to destroy him, general debility, and be about once more.

—The great conundrum now is, "Where will the circus exhibit?" Men are lying awake nights thinking about it and the small boy is being reduced to a state of terrible anxiety in regard to the matter. There is no prospect that the question will be solved before Thursday.

THE most elegant display of solid silver ware now offered and probably the finest that we will be shown in Bellefonte is now on exhibition at the jewelry store of Frank P. Blair. They are all from the celebrated Gorham Co., who stand without a rival in the known world; are sterling fine and are cased in the most elegant and finished manner. A few samples of the Fountainebleau design which is considered by the most competent judges to be the most successful art work in silver ever attempted since the days of Cellini, who was justly called "the incarnation of the goldsmith's art."

—The advance guard, of the pretty girl delegation has put in appearance in Bellefonte.

—The beautiful new organ in the Reformed church at Zion was dedicated on Sunday, Rev. Shoemaker, of Jacksonville, delivering the dedicatory discourse. Mr. Jacob Struble presided at the organ. The beautiful ritual of the Reformed church was used, rendering the services very effective and solemn. The attendance was quite large. When the services were concluded Dr. Fisher gave a very fine performance on the exquisitely toned instrument, after which the congregation retired much pleased with all they had heard and seen.

THE LATEST NEWS.

An Extra Session.

HARRISBURG, June 6.—Governor Pattison has called an extra session of the legislature to convene at noon to-morrow to consider the apportionment bills. He says:

The constitution commands the general assembly immediately after each United States decennial census to apportion the state into senatorial and representative districts This imperative mandate has not been obeyed. By the joint rules of your houses the time has gone by when any biils disclosing a purpose to perform this duty can be presented to me for approval.

The obligation is imposed upon the governor to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed.' I deem it my duty, therefore to exhaust my lawful authority to correct the grave default of the legislature. Equally important and necessary, though not so specifically commanded by law, is the duty of the assembly to apportion the state into congressional and judicial districts. I therefore designate the apportionment of the state into senatorial, representative, congressional and judicial districts as subjects for legislative consideration.

The right of the people to fair,just and lawful representation in the legislative councils of the the state and union is secured by the constitution and must not be denied, The importance of the right cannot be over-estimated. It is the essential principle of our form of government. It underlies all our political rights. It is to be jealously guarded, carefully conserved and faithfully carried out.

He says that the duties of parties in the present legislature should make a fair apportionment possible, gives his views as to their duties and says he has called them together at this time to lessen the expense of the session and prevent the necessity of recalling them from their homes.

Barnum's Circus Burned.

CHICAGO, June 5—When the alarm was turned in at 2 o'clock this morning, caused by the discovery that Barnum's circus was on fire, the department responded quickly,but before any engines were brought the destruction of the main tent was complete. Several streams were played on the base ball fence, and they succeeded in preventing the spread of the fire to the adjoining canvas, under which were cages of wild beasts. The flames ran up the canvas to the center poles in a twinkling and a gorgeous scene was presented on the lake front for a few moments, Michigan avenue for blocks being light as day, while shipping lying in harbor was clearly outlined. The tugs in the harbor added to the uproar by the incessant screaming of their whistles. The canvas and guy rope being destroyed, the center poles were precipitated to the ground, carrying fire in among the reserved seats, entailing their almost complete destruction. The night watchman in charge of the stable tents was surprised in time to enable the hostler to lead out the horses quietly. The wild animals had all been locked up for the night, and as they could not see the flames, were in no sense panic stricken, although the smell of smoke appeared to excite some of them. The property loss is estimated at $15,000 to $16,000, with no insurance, but the interruption of the performance may necessarily increase the amount very considerably to the showman. The canvas destroyed covered six acres of ground, and is claimed to be the largest single one in the world. The management had a duplicate on hand, and in the event of the costumes not being entirely destroyed they will show again this evening.

The Queen's Ill Health.

BOSTON, June 5.—A cable dispatch from the Herald's London bureau gives the statement of a correspondent who made it his business to interview a "well-known and influential member of the inner court circle" in relation to the queen's health. He was informed that severe dropsical symptoms had set in, and that the queen's condition was considered so unsafe that her doctors all protested against her present journey to Scotland. The only thing that caused them to assent to her going was the fact that the inability of her majesty to get about since the hurt of her leg has minimized her outdoor exercise. This has been most sadly missed, but it is thought the fresh air of Balmoral will to a great degree make up for it. The immediate result of this cessation of outdoor life has been fit after fit of serious depressions. The melancholia has frightened the doctors and added to the internal morbidity of the system is causing all who know to anticipate at no very distant date at least the fear of the queen being confined a confirmed invalid to her own bed.

Panic at a Circus.

SUSPENSION BRIDGE, N. Y., June 5.—During the performance of a circus here to night the canvas tents were struck by a terrific rain squall and utterly demolished. Fifteen hundred persons were in the tents and a terrible panic ensued. A great many people were injured but none fatally.

Ohio Republicans.

COLUMBUS, June 6.—The republican state convention reassembled at 10 o'clock this morning. Senator Sherman was made permanent chairman amid tumultuous applause. In his address on taking the chair he said the republican party believes in the protection of American industry and the taxation of the liquor traffic. The platform affirms that the past record of the republican party has given the best assurance of its purpose for the future; declares in favor of a protective tariff and of the restoration of the wool tariff of 1867; favors the establishment of a national bureau of labor statistics; approves of the submission to the people of the constitutional amendments in relation to the liquor traffic; approves of the taxation of the liquor traffic; congratulates the country upon the reduction of internal taxation; indorses the administration of President Arthur and Governor Foster; indorses civil service reform, and favors the repeal of the law limiting the time in which applications for pensions may be made.

The following is the ticket nominated: Governor, Judge Foraker, of Cincinnati; lieutenant governor, William G. Rose, of Cleveland; supreme judge,long term, W. A. Apson, of Akron, present incumbent; supreme judge, vacancy and long term, John H. Doyle, of Toledo, present incumbent; clerk of the supreme court Dwight Crowell, Ashtabula county, present incumbent, attorney general, N. B. Earnhart, of Miami county; auditor, John J. Oglevee, of Clark county; member of board of public works, Leo. Waltz, of Wilmington. The state central committee were authorized to fill any vacancies on the ticket that may occur. The convention then at 2.20 p. m. adjourned

Southern Cyclones.

GALVESTON, Texas, June 4.—A special to the News from Greenville says: A tornado struck this place last evening in a northwesterly direction with terrific force. The rain fell in torrents for twenty minutes and the total destruction of the town seemed inevitable. A survey of the city shows that 150 houses were either blown down or moved from their foundations. A large number of old buildings were more or less damaged. Strange to say only one life was lost—that of a colored child. Several persons, however, were severely injured. The northern ends of the Missouri Pacific railroad freight depots were blown off,the Methodist and colored churches were totally wrecked and the Presbyterian and Baptist churches were badly damaged. Heavy rain storms prevailed at other points but no tornado occurred.

CHICAGO, June 4.—A special from Decatur, Ala., says: "A cyclone swept through Butler county on Sunday, demolishing houses on the plantations of Messrs. Betroment, Nesley, Wilkinson, Styles, Turner and Mrs. Meaghar. One negro was killed and several other persons were wounded.

Nihilistic News.

LONDON, June 6.—The Times' correspondent at Paris says a Nihilist communique has been issued which states that while the whole force of the Russian government and its most intelligent spies were concentrated at Moscow during the coronation festivities, the Nihilists took advantage to spread the doctrines and enroll supporters in St. Petersburg and other centers and says the strength of the party in St. Petersburg is greatly increasing, and states that there were at the coronation officials and others under order of the Nihilists near enough to the Czar to have struck him on the brow if the word had been given. It was even feared that some too zealous partisan might throw a grenade at the Czar.

A Dynamite Cartridge Exploded in a School.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Robert Cridland, 11 years old, a resident of Chestnut Hill, found a dynamite cartridge in a quarry on Sunday,and took it to the Chestnut Hill Consolidated School this morning in his trousers pocket At about 10 o'clock, while the class was deep in arithmetic, Robert bethought him of his prize. He took it out, and with a pen began scratching it. Instantly there was a report that started teachers and pupils to their feet, shook the floor, and caused young Cridland to bounce from his seat and execute a war dance as he waved his mangled left hand. A panic among the pupils was prevented by the teachers. Two fingers and the thumb of the boy's hand were blown off

Yield of Precious Metals.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The special report of Judge Burchard, director of the mint, upon the production of precious metals in the United States, has been made public. The yield of the mines for the year 1882 was $32,500,000 in gold and $46,800,000 in silver, making a total of $79,300,000. This is a decline of $2,200,000 in gold and $3,800,000 in silver. The report is very full,giving the relative production of each state. It is voluminous and of limited interest, but to experts entirely satisfactory except in the matter of decline in volume of business.

Two Desperadoes Killed.

ATLANTIC, Ia., June 4.—Frank B. Brown and John Anderson, two desperado members of what is known as the "Crooked Creek" gang, pursued a course of intimidation in the town of Wiota for three hours on Sunday by firing revolvers promiscuously, and creating other forms of disturbance. Finally they were met by an armed body of citizens and shot down. Anderson is dead and Brown will die.

Immigrants Swindled.

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 4.—This morning twenty-five young women, English and Swedish immigrants, arrived here from New York by boat and train. They were sent out by a firm, alleged to be doing business in New York, to accept situations in hotels and boarding houses represented to have been obtained for them. They found that no places had been secured and that they were the dupes of swindlers. Each girl had paid a man, purporting to be a member of the firm, $3.50; viz: $1 for booking and $2.50 for boat and car fare. They were told that this would include berths and meals, but neither was furnished them, and they arrived here without having eaten since Sunday noon.

Being penniless and unable to buy return tickets to New York, they went to police headquarters and explained their situation. The reporters on the local newspapers provided dinner for the girls at a hotel. Ex-Alderman Mitchell stated the case to the overseers of the poor, who gave orders that the young women be entertained at the hotel until to-morrow afternoon, if situations for them are not sooner obtained. The police took care that no improper persons interfered with the girls. Through the efforts of some good Samaritans situations for all were obtained during the afternoon. The police think they can trace the man who swindled the immigrants.

Ohio Republicans.

COLUMBUS, O., June 5.—The republican state convention convened at 4 o'clock this afternoon, the district delegations having held meetings previously to select the members of the various committees. Senator L. P. Wolcott, as temporary chairman, made a long speech. The usual committees were announced and the convention adjourned to 10 o'clock to-morrow morning when the committee on resolutions will report and a ticket be nominated. There is no change in sentiment as to the head of the ticket, and the indications are that Mr. Foraker will be nominated on on the first ballot or by acclamation.

Hanlan at Home.

TORONTO, June 3.—Hanlan arrived here this afternoon, accompanied by G. W. Lee. They will leave in two weeks to attend the Pullman, Ill., regatta. Hanlan spoke in the highest terms of his treatment in the United States and did not by any means make light of Kennedy as an opponent.

BOSTON, June 3.—Before Hanlan left town he said the course at Point of Pines was not three miles long. Kennedy says it was a minute short. Hanlan will wager $5,000 or $10,000 that he can row over the course in 18 minutes or better. It is impossible to measure the course exactly now as the boats and stakes have been removed.

A Foolish Man.

CINCINNATI, June 4.—A young man, giving his name as J. Dietz, of Reading, Pa., stepped into the money order department of the postoffice to write a money order, and asked to be shown a private room where he could take some money from his boot, when he was told the passage way would do. He drew a small revolver and shot himself twice in the mouth before the pistol could be taken from him. The wounds do not appear to be fatal.

A STRONG STATEMENT VINDICATED.—Mr. W. E. Clarke, of Providence, R. I., several years ago made concerning his kidney medicine, Hunt's Remedy, the strong statement that it was never known to fail. How did he dare to say so much? How did he know it to be the truth? Because, Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine, proved itself to be a positive cure for Bright's Disease of the kidneys; and he knew that a medicine that would accomplish that, would cure any ailment of the kidneys, bladder, liver and urinary organs. And time has proved the statement strictly true.

Slugger Sullivan a Candidate for Office.

BOSTON, June 3.—John L. Sullivan put on the gloves with Steve Taylor, at a benefit given at the Howard Athenæum to-night. There was no slugging, and in the frendly play which characterized the three rounds the champion showed himself complete master of the situation. There is some talk among Sullivan's political friends of urging him for the office of superintendent of streets, which is vacant.

The Bathing Season Upon Us.

WHEELING, W. Va., June 5.—This afternoon, Peter Dolan, a youth of about 10 years, was drowned at Benwood. Dolan, together with three other boys, was bathing in the river, and, seeing a steamer approaching, they endeavored to swim out to it. The distance, however, proved too great and Dolan sank, his companions reaching the shore with difficulty.

Failure of an Iron Company.

PITTSBURG, June 4.—The Grafton Iron Company of Leetonia, Ohio, has failed. Its liabilities are about $600,000. Two large concerns in Pittsburg—Graff, Bennett & Co., iron manufacturers and furnace men, and Robinson Rea—are stockholders in the Grafton Iron Company. Their solvency is undoubted.

A Fenian Plot.

CHICAGO, June 4.—A special from Toronto, Ont., says a Fenian plot to blow up the welland ship canal has just been unearthed. The particulars have not been ascertained as yet.

Fighting the Trade Dollars.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The produce dealers held a meeting to-day, when a report was received from a committee previously appointed to consider and suggest measures to reform abuses. The committee recommended the signing of an agreement to reject trade dollars. Forty-one firms, it was said, had agreed to reject the obnoxious coin. The committee hoped a sufficient number of names would be obtained for the agreement to enable the refusal of trade dollars to go into effect on the 15th instant.

A Miracle in Oil City.

Doctors Dumbfounded—Druggists and the people wild with excitement.

From the Oil City Derrick, July 21, 1881.

Miss Maggie Martin, of this city,has been ill and confined to her house for several years. Our best physicians failed to give her relief. She took Peruna, and, to the astonishment of all who knew her, she is now up and about again. Mr. Simmons, the druggist, sold 148 bottles last week. He buys in gross lots. Mr. Cowell, too, sells it. Ask your druggist for Dr. Hartman's book—"Ills of Life" (gratis) or address Dr. H. at Osborn, O., for one.

Strike Ended.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Six hundred union bricklayers had a session last night, and after a long discussion it was decided the men can go to work whenever they choose at four dollars per day, provided they refuse work under a non-union foreman. This practically ends the strike, and it is regarded as a collapse of the union.

Advertising Cheats!!!

"It has become so common to write the beginning of an article in an elegant, interesting manner,

"Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such,

"And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

"To induce people

"To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else."

"THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

"Religious and secular, is

"Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines.

"There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

"And ability

"In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.

Did She Die?

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years."

"The doctors doing her no good;"

"And at last as cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about."

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A Daughter's Misery.

"From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble, and nervous debility,

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

The State College—Past and Present.

MR. EDITOR: Within the past few years a great deal has appeared in print for and against the State College. Some things that have been said may have been correct but others certainly were not. Living in the same neighborhood and being acquainted with the institution from its beginning, I have had an opportunity of observing its operations. I was familiar with that section of the country before any land was cleared there. It was a favorite hunting ground and I remember well of killing deer and other game where the College now stands. In an early day that part of the country was called the Barrens. It was not so called on account of the poverty of the land, but because the timber was cut off. It was part of a large tract of land owned by the Centre Furnace company. In the year 1846 I saw them cutting the timber and sowing wheat on part of it. The establishment of an institution of learning in such a region was considered quite an undertaking, but the energy and perseverence of its originators were finally crowned with success. Since the college has had an existence it has had its seasons of prosperity and reverses. During the administration of Dr. Pugh, the first president, it was prosperous to an unexpected degree. I think it was due in a great measure to his habits as a man, his scholarly learning and eminent executive ability. Unfortunately, the institution was deprived of his services while yet in its infancy. This was the first and greatest reverse. Through a series of years after his death it was an experiment with men whose qualifications for the position were doubtful. While in some respects they might have been considered fit, yet in other particulars they were deficient—"weighed in the balance and found wanting." During these years the farm was not properly managed. There was too much science and not enough practical knowledge. Science is an excellent thing in its application, but that alone without experience and the exercise of good judgment will not grow good grain or stock.

Whatever may have been the condition of things in the past, I think the present indicates a very decided improvement both in the college and on the farm. The standard of the college course has been raised. They have an excellent corps of professors and are graduating some very good students. Many of them are engaged in the different professions, while others have become successful agriculturists. Some have become quite proficient in civil engineering.

The president of the faculty appears to be the right man in the right place. He brings to the position learning, energy and practical experience. If he continues as he has commenced I think there is no doubt the institution will prosper.

The farm is in a better condition now than I have ever seen it. The prospects are brighter this season than they have been for years. The manager of the farm is an industrious man and one who understands his business. He lives on the experimental farm but oversees both farms. Last winter they fattened about 60 cattle.

If there were no other attractions, I think the view from the top of the college would well repay a visit. The college is delightfully located in the upper end of Penns Valley and commands a fine view in all directions. The valley, one of the richest and most beautiful in this part of the State, is bounded on the south by Tussey mountain. On the west and north in the distance can be seen the Muncy mountains. To the east lie Penns and Nittany valleys, divided by Nittany mountain which rises in graceful proportions from the valley beneath. These combinations make one of the finest views I know of in the country.

If any are prejudiced against the institution I would advise them to visit it and examine its operations before condemning it.

C. DALE, SR.

—As Mr. Arty Brown, the enterprising Bishop street grocer, was assisting to elevate a barrel of produce from the cellar to the street on Tuesday afternoon of last week, the barrel slipped back and in its descent tore considerable skin from one of his legs. The consequences might have been much worse, but with his usual alertness he jumped out of harm's way. Otherwise it would have jammed him so closely against a kerosene tank standing near that between the two Jumbos there would have been nothing left of Arty to tell the tale.

—It was noticeable that on Memorial day no cases of dead drunks or "half seas over" were observed. We hope that this good state of affairs on holidays and all other important occasions will continue.

Meeting of Borough Council.

President John Ardell was not present at Council meeting on Monday evening, the 4th instant, and on motion of Mr. L. L. Brown, Mr. William Shortlidge was elected President pro tem. The members present were Shortlidge, Brown, Crider, Walkey, Tate, McCafferty, Ceadars and Bartley. The minutes of the regular meeting of May 21 were read and approved and also the minutes of the special meeting on Monday evening, May 28.

When citizens of the town were invited to present petitions, J. L. Spangler, Esq., who was present, arose to make application for authority of council to open Beaver street. He stated that the consent of all but three of the property owners had been obtained. The three exceptions were Mr. F. Potts Green, Mr. Chas. McCafferty and Mr. Daniel Rhoads and no doubt the last mentioned gentleman would consent willingly. Mr. Spangler wants the street opened from the east line of the borough to Allegheny street, and thence to Spring street and on to Griffith Davis' property on the pike. Beaver street, he said, is located exactly 420 feet north of Curtin and was laid out in reference to the plot of the borough It is located midway between Curtin street and what is known as 5th avenue. Five lots have already been sold on the street. The owners of the property will give the street and erect fences on either side without expense to the borough. He also desired permission to open Ridge street from Church alley to Beaver street.

The request was referred to the Street committee to investigate and report to council.

Mr. Monroe Armor also appeared before council to ask for a more plentiful flow of water on his premises on the extreme eastern end of Linn street. He is supplied, he said, only in the morning and evening. Various theories were expressed in regard to the cause of the limited supply at that point, that given by Engineer Bateman, who was present, being apparently quite satisfactory. It was suggested, in view of the fact that forty or more houses will be erected on Curtin street during the year, that more adequate means of water supply should be employed.

The committees reported.

The Market committee stated that a small amount had been collected from the curb market.

The Fire and Police committee reported that the repairs had not yet been made on the Undine hose house.

—Governor Curtin lectured on Russia in the opera house in Tyrone on Monday evening, June 4, to a large and appreciative audience. The stage from which he delivered the lecture was artistically and appropriately ornamented. The correspondent of the Altoona Tribune describes it by saying that in the rear could be seen a statue of Venus recently imported from Rome. Above was a large portrait of the late President Garfield and on the left a portrait of the orator while one of Governor Pattison was suspended on the right. Large paintings of Napoleon Bonaparte and Empress Josephine in size eight by ten feet occupied prominent places, while just above and in full view were suspended the portraits of Shakespeare on the left and Byron on the right, and perched on pedestals were busts of Washington, Forney, Homer, Shakespeare, Apollo and Byron, while the aroma from a profusion of choicest flowers made the air delightfully fragrant. They evidently understand the art of managing things in first-class style in Tyrone.

Two Painful Accidents.

Richard Adams, of Milesburg, a brakeman on the railroad, had his left foot crushed on Tuesday morning, the 5th instant, by being run over by the cars on the bridge across Spring Creek. One of the bones in his right foot was also broken. The man's cries when the accident occurred were agonizing in the extreme. He was conveyed into the depot building and Dr. Harris was summoned who gave his injuries the necessary attention. It is feared that amputation of the left foot will be necessary. Mr. Adams is a comparatively young man. He was married about six months ago.

A small lad named Herman Ickey was struck on the leg by a large stick of wood near the depot the same morning, inflicting quite a severe cut which bled profusely.

—The Philipsburg Journal understands on what it considers reliable authority that the Beech Creek, Clearfield & Southwestern Railroad Company has decided to run the main line of their road through that place. The site for the erection of a depot is now under consideration, and the further arrangements, looking to its permanent passage by this route, being completed.

—In the Susquehanna it is said that bass are more numerous than they were last year. It is thought by the best posted, however, that river fishing will be excellent this summer. The bass have multipled rapidly, and numerous monsters have been observed in the clear water. The idea that bass do not feed upon each other is a mistaken one. They do, as all fishermen who have taken the pains to ascertain have discovered, and a question for the future will be whether the employment of gill nets will not be advisable, in order to remove the gormandizers who prey upon the young. It would be better for the anglers if the use of such nets were commenced at once. Weeding out the big fish saves the little ones and naturally increases the regular sizes.

—A committee of nine clergymen and laymen of the Central Pennsylvania diocese of the Episcopal church are to report at the meeting to be held in Reading this week concerning the separation of the diocese into two smaller divisions. A report has been prepared and published for distribution. It is signed by seven members of the committee. The report maps out three distinct divisions, but does not bind the convention to the acceptance of any one of them, leaving the convention to choose an entirely new division if considered expedient and thus making the work of the convention quite useless. The two members of the committee who refused to sign this report are Rev. John Hewitt of this place and Hon. Samuel Reynolds, of Lancaster. They will present a minority report.

—The Williamsport Sun and Banner refers to the latest scheme for victimizing unsuspecting individuals as follows: Three glib-tongued individuals canvass the town for silver to be replated. They agree that the goods will be returned in about a week looking as good as new. No money to be paid until the goods are returned. They succeed in collecting a large number of silver knives, forks and spoons. After a sufficient time has elapsed they return to the different parties the number of articles received from them, but they are not the genuine goods. They are a cheap class of so called silverware, worth about one fourth what they charged for replating Looking new and bright, the fraud is not discovered until the scoundrels have left the town.

—The Bush House pet coon "Jeff," has been behaving badly, and has lowered himself greatly in the estimation of his admirers. The facts may have been exaggerated somewhat, but it is nevertheless reported that his coonship was found in a neighbor's chicken coop the other night, from which a dozen or so of spring birds have since been missing. It is well known that animals of "Jeff's" species have a fondness for chicken diet, and under the circumstances it is not strange that suspicion rests upon him as being the thief. We're afraid that "Jeff" is going to the bad very fast.

No Charge for Consultation.

If you are suffering from any chronic disease about which you are growing discouraged, such as Pulmonary trouble, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration, etc., send a statement of your condition to Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard street, Philadelphia, and get their opinion as to the value of Compound Oxygen in your case. It will cost you nothing. Ask them, at the same time, to furnish you with such documents in regard to their treatment and such evidence in regard to their professional standing as will enable you to clearly apprehend the nature and action of the treatment and give you confidence in them personally.

—The horse-chestnut trees which ornament two sides of the premises surrounding the residence of Mr. David Wagner on High and Spring streets are about as graceful, symmetrical and beautiful as we can imagine trees to be. Just now they are covered with cone-shaped blossoms, and promise a fine harvest of horse chestnuts for the boys to aim clubs and stones at in September next.

—Selins Grove is having a grand musical jubilee commencing June 12th (yesterday) and closing on the 15th. A chorus of six hundred voices has been organized for the occasion, and a number of eminent artists have been engaged to take part. Our thanks are due the committee for favor received.

—The numbers for the pews of the Reformed church have been received and placed in position. They are not silver, neither are they tin, but they are undeniably neat and useful.

—Read advertisement of Hicks & Griffith foundry in another column. Farmers or others in need of repairs for machinery will find just what they want at this establishment.

—Sunday school scholars are looking forward to the annual picnic.

Into the Canal.

While two gentlemen of this place were returning in a buggy from Milesburg to town recently, they heard a vehicle approaching from behind They were moving along at a rapid rate and did not consider it necessary to make space for the rear vehicle to pass. The occupant of the latter conveyance was somewhat intoxicated, however, and attempted to pass at a point just this side of the toll-gate. In doing so he drove too near the old canal into which the buggy in which he rode was thrown and he was pitched out into the canal. The vehicle was not much damaged and the accident served a good purpose in effectually sobering the unfortunate man who was so unceremoniously pitched into the water.

Four Hungarians Killed.

A friend of the REPUBLICAN informs us that during a melee between the American and Hungarian miners of Decatur township, Clearfield county, during the latter part of last week, four of the Hungarians were killed. We have not learned any of the particulars, nor have we seen reference to it in any of the newspapers, but our informant says that the tragic event really resulted in the death of the four Hungarians.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, whiey sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggists for it. Each bottle is warranted. Smith, Kline & Co., Wholesale Agents, Philadelphia, and Hall & Ruckel, New York. 14 24 1y

All other American Watches at Reduced Prices.

TAUNTON, June 18, 1881.

I bought a silver cased Rockford Watch, unadjusted, April 12, 1880, for $20.00. Until June 9th, it run within sixty seconds, at a regular rate of about two seconds slow a day. It was regulated and set June 9, 1880, and until Dec. 8, 1880 (nearly six months), without any attention to regulation was only seventeen seconds slow.

JOEL BEAN,
Overseer Carding Room Whittenton Mills.

I have carried my Rockford Watch about eight months, and it has performed to my satisfaction all the time; the last two months running at a rate of two seconds a day. Am perfectly satisfied, and recommend the Rockford Watch to all railroad men.

CHAS. S. LADD,

The Rockford Watch bought a year ago last October, I have carried every day on an express wagon, loading and delivering freight. It has run very well under all circumstances. It has not been altered for months and now is only thirty seconds fast; has given me perfect satisfaction. I. W. LEACH,

Local Department.

—Vegetation is beautiful and luxuriant.

—The charter for the Centre Building and Loan Association has been received.

—Guard against sunstrokes. Thirteen occurred in New York City on Wednesday.

—A new pavement is to be laid around the Brockerhoff property on Bishop and Spring streets.

—Miss Dolly Caldwell, one of Tyrone's most charming young ladies, is the guest of Mrs. R. M. Magee.

—Valentines Store Company, Limited, have commenced the journey down town into their new store rooms.

—A remarkably handsome tomb has recently been erected around the grave of the late Mrs. William Humes in Union Cemetery.

—Mr. D. D. Koons, a prominent citizen of Eagleville, has a new barn in process of erection. Chestnut shingles will be used on the roof.

—Mr. Robert S. Murphy, son of Francis Murphy, the temperance orator, was admitted to the Cambria county bar on Thursday.

—Mr. W. R. Teller, of the Bush House, has a small electric light which he says is equal in brilliancy to four ordinary gas burners.

—A glut is reported in the strawberry market. That is not the case in Bellefonte as the scarlet fruit continues to be a rare article.

—By the time the Bellefonte and Buffalo Run R. R. is completed it is expected that at least three charcoal furnaces will be in operation in this immediate vicinity.

—The surgeons have not yet found it necessary to amputate the foot of Richard Adams, of Milesburg, which was so seriously crushed by the cars a few days ago, although it is probable that such a measure will have to be resorted to before many days.

—It is among the possibilities that Rev. Dr. Everett, Pattison's private secretary, will visit Bellefonte to lecture for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. soon. If so he will receive a cordial reception.

—Mr. John Bathurst, of Mount Eagle, had an experience worth mentioning recently. While fishing in the Bald Eagle he caught a pike measuring 23½ inches in length and weighing three pounds.

—The monthly meeting of the Board of Managers of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Thursday evening at the residence of D. S. Keller, Esq., on Linn street. The refreshments provided for the occasion were rich and ample, after which such business as came before the Board was taken up and dispatched.

—On Thursday night Mr. C. A. Glenn's art gallery was entered and robbed of some valuable articles. The robbers also damaged the interior of the gallery to some extent. An entrance was effected by cutting out two window lights in the rear end of the gallery. Suspicion rests on certain parties whom it is unnecessary to name.

—On Tuesday of last week a certain farmer of Centre county purchased a wind mill from a gentleman who had those articles for sale. But it happened that he had neglected to consult his wife in regard to his purchase and when that estimable lady got wind of it she went for her husband. When last heard from the farmer was pursuing the wind-mill man with the intention of inducing him to take the machine back again.

—A movement is on foot to convert the car works into a tube manufactory, and there are apparently excellent prospects that the movement will be carried into execution. Manager Tiffin is now in Wisconsin making the necessary arrangements to transfer the property into the hands of capitalists who will give valuable timber lands in exchange. The mutual transfer of the two properties depends upon the quality and value of the timber lands.

—It would be interesting to know just how many of the lovely lady school teachers in the public schools of this place will return to their duties when the schools reopen next fall. It is said two of them have pledged their hearts, talents and fortunes, in private, to some individuals of the male persuasion and that before many days come and go they will lead their "better halves" around by the ear, which they know so well how to do after extended practice on their pupils.

Glimpses into History.

On Friday we had the pleasure of inspecting the deed, or indenture, made on the first day of June, 1833, whereby Thomas Burnside and Ellen, his wife, sold to Dr. John Anderson for $2000 about a dozen separate tracts of land, including the property on which Bedford Springs is located. As Bedford Springs was sold the other day for $250,000 it can be readily seen how wonderfully the property has increased in value in fifty years, for at that time it could not have been valued at more than a few hundred dollars, sold as it was as part and parcel of other land at the nominal sum of $2000. The document in question is yellow with age, and the penmanship, executed by said Thomas Burnside—father of the gentleman who now bears that name—is scarcely legible. But its age, coupled with the fact that the property which it conveys has become famous, gives it some local interest.

The same person that exhibited the deed to us also showed us a copy of the New World, Vol. 1, No. 21, published in New York city, on Saturday March 14th, 1840. The paper is especially valuable from the fact that it contains a detailed account of the marriage of Her Majesty Queen Victoria to His Royal Highness Prince Albert of Saxe Coburg and Gotha, which occurred on February 10, 1840. The description is almost as extended as was that published by the New York City papers regarding the coronation of the Czar of Russia. It did not appear until a month after the event, however, instead of the next day as we now receive our news. Among the familiar paragraphs found elsewhere in the same journal may mentioned the following:

PEACHES.—We are sorry to learn that the early peaches in New Jersey are likely to be a failure the present year, most of the buds having been destroyed by frost.

Those New Jersey peaches have been failing annually every year since 1840, and as that report was promulgated as early as March 14, it should not surprise us if similar reports find their way to the northern States as early in the spring in these days of improved news facilities. Whether the peach crop really was a a failure in 1840 we cannot state. The paper is typographically neat and beautiful and as full of reading matter as are modern news journals, although it is generally of a literary and miscellaneous character with very little late news.

Two pictures which were exhibited to us are daily growing more interesting. They were taken, we believe, by Chas. Glenn, the photographer, about the year 1865—one from a point in the vicinity of the reservoir. From it a fair idea of the improvements which eighteen years have wrought may be gained. In the western end of the picture is the Presbyterian church—a plain white structure with unpretentious tower. High street contains only a few handsome dwellings, including that now occupied by Mrs. Wilson. Garman's hotel was also only an unpretentious building with the sign "Garman's" quite distinct on the roof. Only a few buildings indicate the location of what is now Linn street, including the Reformed church and the Hayes property, now occupied by Mr. Milliken. Curtin street was a waste of barren fields. The romantic Milesburg gap and those everlasting hills are the only features in the picture unchanged. The other picture alluded to is a view of Allegheny street from what was then known as "Strychnine corner." The only sign which is readable in that vicinity is one on an insignificant frame building, "Lager Beer—Refreshments." A very plain building then occupied the present site of Joseph Bros.' elegant store rooms. Further along the same street a splendid triumphal arch spans the thoroughfare. It was erected as a sign of rejoicing when the "soldier boys" came home from the war. We are told it contained the names of all the States and Territories to mark the fact that the Union is one and indissoluble. The occasion is still fresh in the memories of many Bellefonters, and we are informed that on the day of the fete the borough contained as large a throng of citizens as have ever been called together on any occasion in this vicinity.

Another curiosity submitted for our inspection at the same time was a china cup and saucer half a century old. But they very nearly resembled the cups and saucers of to-day, so universal is the desire to imitate the mediæval age in modern decorated chinaware.

—The State College base ball nine, which visited this place on Saturday, did not return home until after 10 o'clock. They rendered the air very unmelodious with horns in making their exit from the classic shades of Bellefonte.

What Time is Doing for Snow Shoe.

One who has not visited Snow Shoe since 1880 cannot fail to note the surprising changes that have taken place since that date. This was our experience last Friday on entering that thriving town, in company with Mr. W. B. Rankin, the popular insurance man, for the first time in several years. A few years ago Snow Shoe resembled a sleepy, deserted Kentucky village, and one could lie down at most any hour of the day and enjoy a refreshing snooze without fear of being interrupted by the constant screech of the locomotive and the hum of business activity which now characterizes the place. Two stores were all that were necessary to supply the wants of the villagers, and one hotel was sufficient to accommodate the few travelers who went in that direction. Aside from its health-giving qualities, little was heard of Snow Shoe in those days. The limits of the town have extended in every direction, and what were wild forest lands five years ago are now occupied by stores and dwelling houses; where tall, sturdy trees reared themselves aloft, the church spire now points upward, and land upon which man seldom trod is now covered with fields of waving grain. Snow Shoe now contains three hotels and a dozen or so of prosperous stores, not mentioning the numerous stands where cigars and tobacco are dealt out and a hundred and one other articles which come under the head of "small truck." It can also boast of two pool rooms where the youth of the town of sporting tendencies, congregate to wield the cue. A tonsorial artist has also opened a "bazar" and the young men have now no excuse for appearing before their Lucy Janes on Saturday night with straggling locks and unshaven chin. In some respects, particularly her rapid growth, Snow Shoe reminds us of descriptions we have read of western cities of the Leadville class. What the lead and silver mines are to Leadville the coal mines are to Snow Shoe, and the rapid growth of the latter will continue until the mines shall have become exhausted, which event is many years in the future.

NOTES.

The firm of Geo. R. Boak & Co. are erecting a new store room, of large dimensions, which they expect to occupy in a few months.

Jno. Uzzle's menagerie is one of the attractions of Snow Shoe, and receives many visits from travelers. No one thinks of leaving Snow Shoe without going to see the performances of the monkey and the bears.

The Mountain House maintains the reputation it has won as a first class hostelry. Mr. Ed. Nolan, the genial host, informed us that he has received many applications for rooms for the summer; but his transient patronage is so large that he will be able to accommodate but a few summer boarders.

Mr. Thad. Longwell, of the telegraph office, is growing corpulent on Snow Shoe air and good provender, and the only thing that worries him is the possibility that he will not be able to attend the commencement at Lewisburg academy.

Times are brisk at Snow Shoe, and merchants engaged in all kinds of business are laying the foundations for fortunes.

A Brilliant Matrimonial Event.

At 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon of last week a very interesting event occurred at the elegant residence of Mrs. Susan McKee on Willow Bank street, it being the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary McKee, to Mr. Harry C. Love, of Tyrone. Rev. William Laurie, pastor of the Presbyterian church, was the officiating minister. The groom is an enterprising hardware merchant in the place above mentioned and is from this county, being a brother of our talented townsman, John G. Love, Esq. We believe he purchased the business formerly conducted by Mr. Harry Kline.

The happy couple were ably supported by Mr. J. D. McKee, brother of the bride, as groomsman, and Miss Anna Love, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid.

Only a few near relatives and friends were present, who thronged around the happy bride and groom at the conclusion of the ceremony to tender their congratulations.

An elegant collation was spread in the dining room, the table being ornamented with graceful pyramids of cakes, beautiful bouquets of flowers, &c. A fine collection of presents was displayed on a small table in the rear of the sitting room, including numerous articles of a choice and costly character.

Mr. and Mrs. Love entered the 5:05 o'clock train for Philadelphia. Their wedding tour will include several of the large cities and interesting places of resort. They are followed by the best wishes of numerous friends in which we heartily unite.

A New Residence on Linn Street.

The palatial residence of Prothonotary J. C. Harper graces the extreme east end of Linn street. It is a stately and beautiful structure of pressed brick and although the carpenters and painters are still engaged upon it with seemingly considerable to accomplish ere it is finished, we are informed that Mr. Harper and family will occupy it by the first of July.

A neat porch on the south eastern exposure of the building leads into a front vestibule with outer and inner doors and thence into a spacious hall extending to a similar cozy porch in the rear. On the right is a large parlor; to the left a sitting room with bay windows and in the rear of this a dining room with commodious and well appointed pantry. Further back is the kitchen, fitted up with range, cupboards, sink and all the modern conveniences. Hot and cold water are here liberally supplied. All the rooms are heated from an excellent range in the cellar and in several of them are fire places.

From the front hall the second floor is gained by means of a wide, easy flight of steps and rear stairs also connect the same floor with the kitchen. The two rooms over the sitting and dining rooms are very pleasant and cheerful, the front one having a bay window. They are painted white. Further to the rear is a bath room well fitted up. A blue room and a pink room on the same floor are separated from the others by a wide hall. On the third floor are four rooms, three of them evidently designed for occupancy and one in the rear for a lumber room.

The grounds surrounding the residence are now being sodded and otherwise beautified.

Mr. H. E. Zerby had the contract for the house and has accomplished the work expeditiously. Mr. Wm. Steel had the carpenter work in charge. The painting was done under the superintendence of Mr. Andrew Lonberger. The mason work was well done by Mr. John Noll.

Railroad News.

The Coal Trade Journal pubishes the following reliable information in regard to the Beech Creek, Clearfield and Southwestern Railroad. This line, it says, is built to serve the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Co., of which Mr. C. J. Langdon is president and, as is well known, he is a pushing coal man. It enters the property of the company less than sixty miles from Jersey Shore, and this point is 245 from New York Bay, by the Reading and its affiliated lines. Mr. W. S. Nearing is the chief engineer on this line, and G. H. Platt, formerly of the McIntire mines, is Sup't and manager of the coal department. The company have 23,000 acres near Kylertown, and on the Moshannon, and 10,000 acres at and near Andersonville; these two points will be reached by railroad inside of a year, and a branch may be run to the county seat, Clearfield. Grades on the line laid out are easy and in favor of the coal, being not half of that over which Clearfield coal goes to market. The railroad company will carry coal of other land owners at as low rates as competing lines and from its natural geographical advantages and connections will command at once a large trade in New York and the Eastern States. To produce the coal as cheap as possible, coal cutting machines will be introduced and we learn that in view of this fact General Magee has secured the right of the Harrison mining machine for Clearfield and Centre counties.

—Among the superb views taken by the National View and Photo-Copying Company, of Tyrone, which has been spending considerable time in Bellefonte of late, is one of the building in which the REPUBLICAN is published, which for genuine excellence cannot be excelled. The prospective includes several familiar figures among whom are Colonel William Shortlidge, manager of Alexander & Co's implement ware house, a young lady whose white costume is plainly discernible but her features are shaded by the veranda above, Mr. Kinney, of Valentines' Ironworks, Mr. Parsons and several others whose countenances are more familiar to us than their names. The view extends as far up High street as the new rooms of Valentines Store Company, "Limited," where the circus advertisements in the windows are plainly discernible. We are indebted to the company for the interesting view. If all are similarly excellent they should command a ready sale.

—We have just learned that the residence of Mrs. J. C. Nason, situated four miles north of Julian, was entirely destroyed by fire with all of its contents on the 23rd of May. The loss is estimated at $500, on which there was an insurance in the Commercial Union of $200.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. Harry Williams of Philipsburg is visiting his parents in this place.

Judge John H. Orvis was a guest at the Park Hotel, Williamsport, on Thursday.

Mr. Fearon Mann is adding an elegant French Mansard roof to his residence on Allegheny street.

Mrs. Lichten, of Sunbury, nee Miss Pauline Lyon, is visiting at the home of her parents on Linn street.

Mr. E. G. Hannam, of Catawissa, spent Sunday in town. He is an engineer on the Catawissa Railroad.

A. Brockerhoff and District Attorney Heinle, of this place, autographed at the Fallon House, Lock Haven, on Thursday last.

Mr. Alfred W. Ralston, recently a resident of Pine Grove Mills, has recovered his health and removed on Tuesday, June 5, to Ohio, where he expects to locate.

Mr. Frank McLaughlin, of the Philadelphia Times, was in Snow Shoe last week for the purpose of gleaning information regarding railroad operations in that locality.

Commissioner Henry Campbell, of Rock Spring, accompanied by his wife and daughter, spent a few moments in our sanctum on Friday. Mrs. and Miss Campbell inspected the mysteries of the art preservative. Call again.

Mr. Edward S. Muir, formerly a resident of this place, was married a few days ago to Miss Annie Tate of Philadelphia. We believe that Mr. M. is now a druggist in the Quaker City.

Mr. William Bing, master mechanic in the employ of the Bellefonte and Snow Shoe R. R. previous to the time that road came into possession of the Pennsylvania R.R. Company, was visiting in Bellefonte last week. He is now living in Tyrone.

Mr. M. B. Shaw, of Kalamazoo, Mich., accompanied by a large number of assistants, is spending a few days in town in the interest of a fanning machine. His headquarters is the Garman House.

Dr. Miles Kirk, the well-known physician and druggist of this place, recently traveled in Clearfield county. We are not informed whether it is a wife or a thousand acres of coal land he is searching for, but the former is the most probable.

Misses Mollie and Nellie Larimer arrived in Bellefonte on Tuesday evening of last week from Chicago, where they have been attending school. Miss Nellie spent last summer in Bellefonte although Miss Mollie has not been here for two years past.

Mr. Victor Maire, an employe of the glass works, left last Wednesday for his home in Oneida, New York, where he expects to engage in other business. Mr. Maire is a good workman and a sociable companion, and his fellow-workmen regret to see him go.

G. H. Lichtenthaler, Esq., a former resident of Montoursville, Lycoming county, has located in Philipsburg for the practice of law. He pursued his legal studies with J. Artley Beeber, Esq., of Williamsport, and will succeed if success is possible in Philipsburg.

General Beaver will deliver an oration during the ceremonies incident to the unveiling of the Soldiers' monument at Germantown on the Fourth of July. On the same occasion a poem written by Thomas M'Kellar, of Philadelphia, will be read by Rev. Dr. Everett, Governor Pattison's private secretary.

We were pleased on Friday to receive a call from Adam Deckert, Jr., of Nittany. Mr. Deckert was the first person who called in the office to subscribe for the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN when the present editorial management of that paper was begun ten years ago. His calls have been regular ever since.

Mr. W. R. Teller, of the Bush House, last week received two immense deer antlers from Montana. They are between two and three feet high and measure four feet across at the top from tip to tip. Each antler weighs twenty-five pounds. They were evidently taken from an animal of remarkable size and strength.

Dr. Miles Kirk put in appearance Friday evening after a protracted visit in Clearfield county. Most of his time while away was spent in Luthersburg and Dubois although he tarried a few hours in Tyrone with his friend, Dr. Ewing. The Clearfield folks are under the impression that it was Vanderbilt traveling in cog.

Dr. Thomas R. Hayes and lady departed on the 10 a. m. train last Friday for Union county where they will visit among their friends a short time prior to their departure for Europe. They will sail from New York City to-day (Wednesday). They anticipate a delightful tour and we hope their highest expectations will be realized.

Mr. C. H. Davis, special examiner of the pension office at Washington, is in town and will remain several months. His wife and two children will also arrive in a few days and will make the Brockerhoff House their headquarters while here.

The seventieth anniversary of the birthday of our townsman, Major Wm. F. Reynolds, drew hither quite a coterie of distinguished people. Among them were Hon. Samuel H. Reynolds, Mrs. S. H. Reynolds, Misses Nellie Reynolds, Maud Reynolds and Mary Reynolds, and S. H. Reynolds, Jr., of Lancaster, and Miss Helen Rice of Pottstown.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harsberger left on Thursday on the early train for Philipsburg to attend the wedding of Dr. S. N. Harshberger of Port Matilda, to Miss Maggie Brown, one of Philipsburg's most accomplished young ladies, which took place at 2 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's parents. The bridal party took the 4 o'clock train for Philadelphia and places of interest. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Polsgrove of the M. E. church.

An Important Resignation.

A meeting of the board of managers of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Tuesday evening, May 29, for the purpose of receiving a communication from J. Willard Miller, General Secretary. The communication proved to be that gentleman's resignation to take effect on the 23rd of June. It was accepted with regret. Mr. Miller has already accepted a similar position in Duluth, Minn., a city of 10,000 inhabitants, which is employing a general secretary for the first time and where a wide field of usefulness awaits a gentleman of his talents and efficiency.

Mr. Miller has proved himself to be the right man in the right place since his advent in Bellefonte. He possesses in a large degree the qualifications that render a general secretary successful. His resignation was accepted so readily because the board of managers considered it the part of duty to permit him to go wherever he can be most useful. They did so, however, with little hope that any one can be secured who will give the same measure of satisfaction.

—Mr. Samuel Hess, says the Reporter, recently celebrated his 84th birthday at his home near Pine Grove Mills. The occasion was taken advantage of by the young ladies of his vicinity to give him a surprise, invading his home and rendering their presence the more welcome by numerous suitable presents. Mr. Hess is still in fair health and is one of the most esteemed citizens of Ferguson township. Twenty yeas ago he was one of the commissioners of the county. May he live to celebrate many more birthdays.

—James Harris & Co's horse met with an adventure on Monday. It slipped and fell on the platform in front of the depot and could not rise until Messrs. E. J. Somers, of Snow Shoe, and A. B. Steele, of this place, came to the rescue. The latter loosened the harness while the former leaped on the animal's head and held it down. Mr. John Olewine was much relieved when he discovered that the handsome animal was uninjured.

—The Society of Friends of this place held services of more than ordinary interest in their meeting house on Sunday morning. Mrs. Julia Valentine and Dr. Richard Thomas, both of Baltimore, were present and delivered impressive discourses. A meeting of the same society was also held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms in the evening.
